STETHOS HOUSE OPENED FOR SERVICE

Mr. J. H. Bounds announces the opening on June 1st of STETHOS HOUSE, 68, Sackville Street, Manchester, the new, spacious, well-equipped headquarters of the STETHOS service to the Hospitals and Public Institutions of this country. The conviction that it is the personal attention given to the individual needs of Superintendents, Matrons and Surgeons which is responsible for the remarkable growth of this business, will inspire the activities of Stethos House.

ALL GENERAL HOSPITAL TEXTILES AND BEDDING

"Stethos" Bandage Calicoes and Butter Muslins, Bandage Flannelettes, Domettes and Fomentation Flannels, Shroudings, Sterilizing Calicoes and Towellings, Bavarian Flannels.

Apron Cloths, Blankets, "Doctor" Flannels, Quilts and Bedspreads, Regatta Shirtings, Sheets and Sheetings, Table Damask and Cloths, Towels and Towellings.

RESTFUL COLOUR FOR THE EYES OF SURGEONS AND NURSES

Operating Theatre Caps, Gowns, Sheets and Trolley Covers, in guaranteed fast dyed Cornflower Blue and Green Calicoes and Linens.

Practical difficulties overcome: the materials are dyed by the most permanent process known to industrial chemists—the purest "vat" dye is applied direct to the thread.

When

may be usefully prescribed

IN CONVALESCENCE—The crispness of Vita-Weat, and its pleasant flavour, will often provide the 'fillip' to a lagging appetite.

FOR A SMALL-BULK 'DRY' DIET—Vita-Weat is valuable in cases of cardiac embarrassment or angina; in gall bladder disease or the flatulent dyspepsias.

FOR DIABETES—Vita-Weat is not, of course, a 'diabetic bread,' in the special sense in which that term is usually understood; but it is a bread of constant and known composition. Each portion is of uniform weight, and contains uniform amounts of protein, carbohydrates and fat. This greatly facilitates the prescribing of a diet when bread must be included.

Members of the medical profession may obtain a generous sample of Vita-Weat upon application to Peek Frean & Co. Ltd., Keetons Road, London, S.E.16

OUR SERVICE TO DOCTORS AND THEIR DEAF PATIENTS!

— NUMBER ONE —

WHEN a deaf aid becomes necessary for your patient —we place a specialised organisation at your disposal. Such are the varying degrees and forms of deafness that no one type of aid can possibly suit the particular needs of different cases—for this reason, our service includes the free testing of the patient by the "Ardente" AURAMETER—whereby the exact aural needs are determined and plotted by graph. Thus an aid (Bone Conduction, Air Conduction, Electrical or Non-Electrical) most suited to the patient's needs is assured—and no expense is incurred until the patient is satisfied—with HEARING.

FOR EFFECTIVE AND SAFE

ANALGESIA

To the patient's plea for something to relieve headache, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, the pains of myalgia and arthritis, or the periodic suffering of women, there is no more effective answer than a prescription for VEGANIN. A trial of this synergistic combination of acetylsalicylic acid, phenacetin and codeine will demonstrate its analgesic superiority over that of the individual drugs administered separately. Moreover, with Veganin, there is no systemic disturbance, no habituation; it is safe in the patient's hands.

Supplied for Hospital use—

K 40

How the Croydon General Hospital safeguards its lights.

What if the lights fail?

The Croydon General Hospital does not run the risks attendant on lighting failure — risks in the operating theatre. So the 'Keepalite' system of emergency lighting is installed — the system that switches itself on the instant the normal lighting fails.

The photograph shows a typical operating theatre, with the 'Keepalite' equipment on the near wall.

Any hospital, or any part of a hospital, can be fitted with the 'Keepalite' system — should be fitted with it. Write for fuller details to the Chloride Electrical Storage Company Ltd., Exide Works, Clifton Junction, near Manchester. (London Office at 137, Victoria Street, S.W.1.)

HOSPITAL LAW NOTES

By W. E. C. BAYNES, M.A., LL.M.

of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law,
Hon. Legal Adviser to The British Hospitals Association

The book deals with practically every legal or semi-legal point on which Secretaries of Hospitals have asked for information during several years past, and there is reason to hope that it may contain the answers to most of the legal problems that Secretaries ordinarily meet with in practice.
The subjects are arranged alphabetically and fully indexed to facilitate reference.

Press References

"It is difficult not to use extravagant superlatives in expressing one's admiration of this book. . . . No hospital secretary should be without it, and it should be worth almost its weight in Treasury Notes to proprietors of private hospitals and nursing homes, though of course it does not deal with the legal problems which are peculiar to their status."
British Medical Journal.

"This book should be one of the working tools of any hospital administrator, whether member of a committee or executive officer."—The Times.

"The work is packed with information valuable not only to hospital authorities, but also to those concerned with convalescent homes and similar institutions."—Morning Post.

"Beneath its unassuming title this book hides a mine of information for the hospital officer. One is struck by the simplicity of its language and by the avoidance of legal phraseology whenever possible. . . . The book should also be of value to any member of the legal profession whose practice brings him into contact with hospitals."—The Hospital.

Opinions of Readers

"I find it a most invaluable help."

"This is an excellent book and will be a valuable addition to our reference library."

"A casual glance has most favourably impressed me with its value."

★ FIRE PROTECTION IN HOSPITALS

The horror and devastation of fire has been minimised to-day by modern fire-fighting apparatus to such an extent that few fires can gain any hold when reasonable vigilance is observed and up-to-date equipment fully installed. This is particularly the case where hospitals are concerned, which, least of all can afford to neglect this grave matter.

John Morris (Firesnow), Ltd., through years of practical experience, are complete experts in all matters pertaining to fire extinguishers and fire-fighting appliances—perhaps one of their most famous productions being

★ THE AQUAMATIC FIRE EXTINGUISHER

This amazingly effective Extinguisher uses plain water power and one dry chemical charge to produce its result and contains no sulphuric acid or harmful liquids, nor does it create unpleasant fumes. Action is extremely simple and the whole device easy to handle and operate. For all particulars of this instrument and any other information please write to

MAGRINI FOOD CONVEYORS

PART OF FLEET OF MAGRINI FOOD CONVEYORS & BOXES SUPPLIED TO SOUTHEND MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL, ROCHFORD, ESSEX.

This photograph speaks for itself. If this Hospital relies so completely on MAGRINI CONVEYORS for its Food Service, surely you, also, should at least investigate their possibilities for your Hospital. It involves you in nothing to send us particulars of your requirements, and our experienced advice is FREE.

Most British Hospitals now rely on MAGRINI EQUIPMENT for an economical and efficient Food Service. List of names, and particulars of REPEAT ORDERS can be seen on request.

OTHER MAGRINI ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT FOR HOSPITALS INCLUDES:
Hot Cupboards. Slicers. Potato Peelers. Knife Sharpeners. Toasters. Grills, etc. Write or 'phone for complete Catalogue, or send details of your special requirements.

THE HOSPITAL YEAR.

REVIEW BY THE EDITOR.

Patients treated in the Voluntary Hospitals.

During the year 1935, 1,325,436 patients were treated in the wards of the Voluntary Hospitals and 5,988,953 in their Out-patient Departments.

These figures represent increases over the previous year of 31,451 In-patients and 45,982 Out-patients, both figures being rather below the normal.

The number of their beds was increased by 1089 to a total of 88,063.

Voluntary Hospital Finances.

The Finances of the Voluntary Hospitals for 1935 may be summarised thus :—

Received.	Spent.	Surplus.
£16,789,385	£15,646,329	£1,143,056

These figures include both Maintenance and Capital accounts.

We are again indebted to Sir Charles Harris, G.B.E., K.C.B., Hon. Financial Consultant to the Central Bureau of Hospital Information, for the Financial Review which appears on page xxxix.

The Voluntary Hospitals Commission.

The Voluntary Hospitals Commission which was instituted at the annual conference of The British Hospitals Association in June 1935, held its first session in January 1936 and after hearing much evidence issued its Report on the 30th April, 1937.* The Report, which will no doubt be known as the "Sankey" Report, while touching upon some of the more outstanding defects of the Voluntary System, makes no attempt to treat symptoms; it confines itself chiefly to main causes. It makes no sensational suggestions, nor is it any valid criticism to say that it repeats, in essentials, that which has already appeared in two previous Reports—the "Dawson" Report and the "Cave" Report. Both these Reports urged a wider outlook and a more rational use of resources. There is, however, this difference, that recommendations that were advisable for a healthy existence in 1920 to 1921 have now in 1937 become essential if life is to be preserved at all; and this the "Sankey" Report emphasises. It emphasises, too, that effort must come from within. No outside body can impose upon the Voluntary Hospitals those reforms that are necessary for their continuance. They must impose upon themselves voluntarily that limitation of independence by which alone they can become, in place of a collection of isolated units, a Hospital System.

There are some supporters of voluntary effort who, aware of its weaknesses, ask for statutory control. Statutory control and voluntary effort will not run easily in double harness. Indeed not a bad definition of voluntary effort is effort that is free from statutory control. What is this body that is to be endowed with statutory control? What its composition, and what the method of its election? What powers are to be entrusted to it and what penalties are to be attached to disobedience? The difficulty does not lie in inventing verbal remedies—it lies in translating them into action. Statutory control as applied to voluntary effort means one thing only—the disappearance of voluntary effort.

The organisation which the Sankey Report urges is a self-created one; a central body representative of regional divisions. Its task, both centrally and regionally, is to collect and to distribute information and by those persuasive powers that come from knowledge of the work to be done and from a sympathetic understanding of the views of those undertaking it, to bring about gradually and in the light of experience, system and order where little or none exists at present. The organisation must also possess the power of the purse. The task of bringing such an organisation into being the Sankey Report places upon the shoulders of The British Hospitals Association. Time, perseverance, and common sense are demanded, and an absence of that attitude of mind that sees difficulties where none exist.

Since this was written an important meeting in connection with the Voluntary Hospitals Commission has taken place. A special session of the Annual Conference of The British Hospitals Association, at whose request the Commission was set up, was held on May 28th in order that the Report might be launched by those responsible for its production. Three members of the Commission generously gave up their time for this purpose—the chairman Lord Sankey, Sir Reginald Poole, and Provost Sheen.

Lord Sankey gave an eloquent and convincing address. He urged those present to consider the Report as a whole; and if they agreed with it in the main, to take steps to implement it. He said that he had presided over a number of enquiries and had never found so universal an agreement among the witnesses who had given evidence both viva voce and in writing. The Voluntary Hospitals could not go on as they were going, and something had to be done. If they agreed to implement the three main recommendations of the Report, viz.:

* A summary of the Report together with the principal recommendations of the Committee, are given on page 293.

1. The division of the country into Hospital Regions,
2. The formation in each region of a Voluntary Hospitals Regional Council to correlate hospital work and needs in the region,
3. The formation of a Voluntary Hospitals Central Council to co-ordinate the work of the Regional Councils, they would in time provide themselves with an organisation that would enable them to solve both their present problems and those that would arise as time went on. Then, and not till then, would they be in a position to justify their claims to financial recognition by the State.

On the analogy of the University Grants Committee, Lord Sankey urged that there was every argument in favour of a Voluntary Hospitals Grants Committee being set up; but there must first be responsible bodies such as those recommended by the Commission to which Government grants could be made. The bodies would make distributions to individual hospitals in accordance with the proved need of each. The history of the University Grants Committee had shown beyond any possibility of argument that private generosity had not been checked by Government grants, but had been stimulated; and that there had been no undue interference with local management, nor any stifling of initiative.* Lord Sankey then in brief outline suggested the steps which he hoped The British Hospitals Association would take as soon as possible, to implement the three main recommendations of the Commission. He pointed out, however, that to bring such an organisation into existence money was necessary, and he expressed the hope that some rich and generous donor might be moved to subscribe a sum sufficient for the purpose.

Lord Sankey's speech was applauded with such enthusiasm as has seldom been heard at any gathering of The British Hospitals Association.

Provost Sheen also spoke and dealt in some detail with the various chapters in the Report.

Sir Reginald Poole concluded a gracious little speech with the words: "Let me conclude by one personal observation; Assume you take this Report seriously, assume you do your best with it and approach it in the spirit of sympathy and not of attack, then I promise you that I personally shall be only too pleased to contribute something towards the fund which has been suggested by Lord Sankey."

In the afternoon session that followed Lord Sankey's address, the Council of the Association were instructed to examine the Report and to make recommendations to a General Meeting specially summoned to receive them. Steps have been taken to carry out the wishes of the Association without delay, the first meeting being held on the 9th June, 1937.

Assessment.

From the time of Elizabeth up to 1866 hospitals were never assessed for rates. In 1866 it was accidentally discovered that they were liable, or rather their liability was believed to have been discovered, for eminent counsel are still to-day divided in opinion regarding the law. Be that as it may no basis of assessment was laid down and hospitals have been left at the mercy of assessing authorities.

In arriving at an assessment there are at least seven different methods followed, only one of which conforms to the recommendation of the Central Valuation Committee which is as follows :—

> "That, in considering a basis, Rating and Assessment Authorities should be reminded that the practical question which they are called upon to determine is—what would be a reasonable annual rent, if the particular property under consideration were in the market to let for the purposes for which it is at present being used," and that in arriving at an estimate of such rent, regard should be had to the following, among other considerations :—

* "BENEFACTORS AND THE UNIVERSITIES. In previous paragraphs we have called attention to the notable extent to which the capital resources of the Universities, whether for purposes of building and acquisition of sites, or for purposes of endowment, have been supplemented by benefactions from one source or another over and above Parliamentary grants. The extent of the assistance received in this way since 1929 amounts to a total sum of something like £5,250,000, approximately £2,280,000 of which has taken the form of endowment. In addition, some £670,000 has been given for fellowships or scholarships. Furthermore, a number of institutions have been promised large sums, payment of which will take effect in the coming quinquennium. These figures are particularly satisfactory as indicating that the grants given by the State serve to stimulate rather than to slacken the generous impulses of other bodies and persons."—Extract from Report of the University Grants Committee for the period 1929–1930 to 1934–1935, page 10.

"That it has, in the past, been the established practice of Rating and Assessment Authorities, in assessing such properties, to take into account the fact that the present occupiers can be regarded as possible tenants only so long as they are able to rely upon voluntary contributions from the general public to enable them to continue the occupation and use of such properties for hospital purposes."

In some areas the beds available for patients provide the basis; in others the beds available for the staff are added; in others again the patient bed is rated lower than the staff bed; in others the staff bed is rated lower than the patient bed. Sometimes a common basis is adopted for an area; sometimes the assessment is based upon the estimated cost of the building; sometimes a purely nominal assessment is made; sometimes no assessment at all.

The total sum paid in rates by the Voluntary Hospitals is difficult to calculate, but it is probably not less than £100,000 a year or more than £150,000. Hospitals not infrequently appeal against their assessments, and the percentage reductions when made range from almost 100 per cent. to less than 20 per cent., resembling in their capriciousness the methods followed in arriving at the assessment itself.

In the London area assessments range from £1 per patient bed to £15 through all the intervening figures. The average is approximately £6 per patient bed. In the Provinces, assessments range from nil to £13 per patient bed; the average is probably somewhere about £3.

In the past, hospitals have been accustomed to trust to the sympathy of the assessing authorities and have been disinclined to take joint action to secure either uniformity of assessment or exemption from rates altogether. To-day, however, there is reason to believe that Local Authorities, speaking generally, are less inclined to take a sympathetic view. They wish to get as much money into the local treasury as possible. Sometimes they argue that as payments for services rendered bulk more largely in the hospital income than formerly, the charitable side of hospital work is disappearing. This, if true, is beside the point, for the services are rendered at less than cost and the benefit is entirely on the side of the Local Authority who would have to pay a great deal more had they to provide them for themselves. To suggest that because the Voluntary Hospitals undertake work at the request and to the financial benefit of the Local Authority their assessments should be raised, is to add insult to injury.

Many of those hospitals that in the past have acquiesced in the policy of leaving matters to the discretion of each individual hospital are becoming restive. They feel it is no longer safe to leave themselves at the mercy of caprice, and they may well be excused if they make efforts to place themselves upon a more satisfactory basis. They are not likely to go to the cost of testing their liability in the law courts or of contesting the legality of any particular method of assessment: but there would appear to be no sound reason why they should not endeavour to restore the state of affairs that existed prior to 1866 by means of a Bill that would have for its purpose the exemption of Voluntary Hospitals from assessment for rates and which would receive a large measure of sympathy from the general public and from the members of both Houses of Parliament.

Road Traffic Accidents.

Under the Road Traffic Act of 1930 provision was made for payment to hospitals up to a maximum of £25 for treatment given to victims of road accidents in respect of which insurance companies paid compensation. The payment was for in-patient treatment only.

Under the Road and Rail Traffic Act of 1933 the maximum amount payable in respect of the treatment of an in-patient was raised to £50 and provision was made for payment for out-patient treatment up to a maximum of £5 per case.

Under the Road Traffic Act of 1934 provision was made for the payment of 12*s.* 6*d.* in respect of the "Emergency Treatment" of any person injured by a motor vehicle on the road. Should this "Emergency" or first treatment be given at a hospital, a claim of 12*s.* 6*d.* against the motorist concerned might be made.

It would be difficult to suggest any reason for the limitation of payment to £25 or the raising of it to £50. As the hospital clause in the Act of 1930 was criticised as bad insurance, it can only be concluded that the limitation was to placate the insurance companies. It was also criticised as bad law. It is not quite clear what was done to placate the legal purist. The manifest injustice of the position so far as the Voluntary Hospitals were concerned probably overcame legal squeamishness, it being felt that something, even if inadequate, must be done. Nothing was done to placate the medical profession owing to the uncertainty which prevailed regarding the effect of payment upon the honorary status of the medical and surgical staffs of the Voluntary Hospitals. With regard to the Voluntary Hospitals themselves, they unfortunately became entangled in matters which were not their business; the main issue was lost sight of, and in the absence of any efficient and adequate organisation to put forward a case based upon fact and an agreed policy, their well-wishers were left with no alternative except to scramble for what they could extract on their behalf.

The situation was never really faced. Those who founded themselves upon the legend " Open at all hours of the day and night to receive accidents " felt that there was something wrong somewhere, but they still clung to the belief that so far as the obligations of the Voluntary Hospitals were concerned conditions had not changed since the days when the fastest coach travelled at not more than 20 miles per hour and when roads could be crossed in safety by the halt and the maimed, by the old and the young. With all its advantages there are occasions when voluntary effort stills the conscience of Government and acts to the detriment of the nation as a whole. It is not until the annual toll of life and of injury to limb has reached the present appalling figure that recognition is being awakened of the fact that the provision of adequate casualty stations upon the King's highway is and has always been, a Government responsibility. Already the hospitals are beginning to question the equity of the £50 limit and it is probable that when next a Bill is brought before Parliament into which it may be found possible to squeeze a hospital clause, the effort will be made.

Contrast all this with what might have been if the suggestion made at the time had been adopted, viz., that a sum of £250,000 should be placed at the disposal of a properly constituted body to be distributed to the Voluntary Hospitals in recognition of the work which they did in acting as national casualty stations. Such a distribution could have been made at a negligible cost and with every reasonable safeguard against imposition. What other arrangements the Government might have considered necessary with regard to insurance policies for motor drivers and their passengers were matters entirely outside the voluntary hospital problem of how to get paid for the work they did and which circumstances obliged them to undertake without thought or question.

Whether or not matters are now so compromised as to make it difficult to get off the wrong road and on to the right remains to be seen. Certainly there is need for a careful examination of facts and procedure. So far as the first are concerned it is unfortunate that their importance is insufficiently realised; with regard to the latter it may be hoped that by implementing the recommendations of the Sankey Commission machinery may be set up by which the Voluntary Hospitals as a body may express themselves effectively. That hospitals do not realise how much the successful presentation of a case to Parliament, and the public generally, depends upon facts and details, is shown by the following disappointing return. There are some 800 Voluntary Hospitals interested in receiving as complete a financial recognition of the work they do in treating road accidents as possible, yet now, at the end of six years, only 184 hospitals were able to supply particulars of the numbers treated and the cost involved. On the basis of the figures supplied by these hospitals (less than a quarter of the total) 65,000 persons were treated in 1935 in hospitals for injuries the result of road accidents; of these 24,000 were admitted to the wards and 41,000 to the out-patient departments. The total cost of this service amounted to £238,000, towards which £128,000, or 54 per cent., was recovered in the following proportions:—

Under the Road Traffic Acts . .	44%
At Common Law	3%
From patients and their friends .	7%

To approach the Chancellor of the Exchequer with an estimate based upon a 25 per cent. return is to court a snub similar to that which he administered when asked to relieve hospitals of the duty placed on oil.

Treatment of Fractures.

The subject of the treatment of fractures and the need for the establishment of fracture clinics was brought prominently to the fore by the Report issued by The British Medical Association in February 1935. It may not be out of place to recall the main recommendations in this Report.

In the opinion of the Committee that drew the Report up the essential conditions of an organised fracture service can be summed up under four headings:—

Segregation of cases;
Continuity of treatment;
After-care; and
Unity of control.

Under the heading Segregation appear the words:—

" . . . It is not essential, and possibly not desirable, that fracture cases should be segregated into one special hospital, but it does appear to be vitally important that every hospital which proposes to deal with fractures should segregate its cases and establish one, and only one, organisation. . . . Only by segregation can the staff become sufficiently highly trained, skilled and experienced in the technical application of modern methods and in the handling of special appliances."

" . . . Such segregation would not exclude from the organisation any member of the hospital staff who was interested in fracture treatment."

Under the heading Continuity of Treatment :—

" The aim of fracture organisations must be not merely the exact reduction of fractures, but the return of patients to maximum functional activity. . . . The patient must not be transferred at a critical stage of treatment from one department to another, from the care of the person responsible for the initial treatment to one who has no knowledge of, or responsibility for, these early measures."

Under After-care :—

" Excellent primary treatment is of little avail in many factures unless it is followed by a phase of active exercise directed to a complete restoration of function; it is this latter phase which is so commonly absent."

Under Unity of Control :—

" Segregation, continuity and after-care achieve their greatest value only if there is unity of control. All the stages of treatment of each case need not only expert supervision but supervision by one expert. In most large hospitals there is one surgeon who is more interested and more expert in the treatment of fractures than any other; to him should be delegated the work. Especially in the smaller hospitals where no individual surgeon has hitherto been particularly interested in traumatic surgery it is urged that one member of the staff should be selected to do the whole of this work. The Committee has knowledge of hospitals in which this measure alone has effected remarkable improvement in the standard of treatment.

" The position may arise where members of the staff other than the fracture surgeon desire to treat cases of fracture in which they are interested. There should be no difficulty in providing for this. The necessity for a unified organisation with a unified control develops not from the occasional patient in whom someone is particularly interested, but from all the other cases where such individual interest is lacking."

This important subject has occupied the attention of the Voluntary Hospitals during the last eighteen months. At their Annual Conference in Edinburgh in June 1936 a session was devoted to an address on " The Treatment of Fractures " by R. C. Elmslie, Esq., O.B.E., M.S., F.R.C.S., and again the subject was discussed at the Agricultural Hall on the afternoon of November 18th, 1936, at a session held under the auspices of The British Hospitals Association, when papers were read by Harold F. Shrimpton, Esq. (House Governor, The Children's Hospital, Birmingham), on " Occupation as a Therapeutic and Educational Agent," and W. A. Cochrane, Esq., M.B., Ch.B., F.R.C.S.E. (Hon. Associate Assistant Surgeon, The Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh; Surgeon, Princess Margaret Rose Hospital, Fairmilehead, Edinburgh), on " The Relation of Orthopædics to Health and Hospital Services." At these conferences three outstanding facts were made perfectly clear.

1. That fractures could and ought to be treated by modern known methods that would shorten the period of disability and restore a greater degree of usefulness.
2. That the financial saving resulting from such treatment would far outweigh the cost of giving it.
3. That a progressive policy was necessary on the part of the Voluntary Hospitals if they wished to retain their position as leaders in this important branch of hospital work.

The Voluntary Hospitals are rendering all the help in their power to the Interdepartmental Committee on the Rehabilitation of Persons Injured by Accidents. On this Committee the Chairman of The British Hospitals Association sits as a member.

A statement embodying the views of the Voluntary Hospitals has been drawn up by a Committee of The British Hospitals Association specially appointed for the purpose. This statement is to be laid before the Interdepartmental Committee on the 2nd June, 1937.

Simplification, Standardisation and Group Purchase.

Simplification and standardisation, without which group purchase would bring little or no benefit, are difficult both for purely technical reasons and also because they depend for success upon active contact between organised bodies representing producers and users; the former, that they may learn how to improve their products; the latter, that they may obtain products that suit their purposes better.

While the producers are possibly better organised than the users there are still few facilities for establishing contact between them. The importance of this can be understood when it is realised that experience in use provides the real criterion of the usefulness of an article for its purpose and that this, which not infrequently differs from laboratory experience, is largely, for lack of organisation, allowed to run to waste. Individual efforts on the part of the producer or the user are of little good, for simplification and standardisation require that production and sale should be on a large enough scale to make them worth while. A certain measure of success has been achieved by a few organised bodies of users, in cases where a central authority is able to collect individual experiences and to put into use, on a large enough scale, standardised or simplified products. With the Voluntary Hospitals, however, matters are more difficult. There is no central authority. Moreover there is in this country an inherent dislike of standardisation and no very great love of simplification. Consequently efforts in the past in the direction of group purchase have not provided examples of striking success. Possibly the ground has not been sufficiently prepared and the methods employed may not have been the most tactful or discreet. In spite of this, however, and of the somewhat discouraging history of joint buying, The British Hospitals Association is making an effort to build up an organisation that will place the Voluntary Hospitals on all fours with institutions that enjoy the special advantages that in this respect a centralised authority undoubtedly makes possible.

A special standardisation committee has been set up and has made considerable progress. Specifications have been prepared and a limited number of articles in universal use selected for bulk purchase on behalf of a group of hospitals. This committee, upon which sit several co-opted members, has received every assistance from, among others, several Government Departments, the London County Council, the British Standards Institution, the Launderers Research Association, the Paint Research Station, the Research Association of British Rubber Manufacturers, British Industries House, The Building Centre at Bond Street—indeed wherever help has been asked it has at once been given. The committee does not hold out extravagant hopes of immediate and spectacular savings over a large field. The importance of the movement lies in the willingness of hospitals to co-operate, not necessarily from an entirely selfish point of view, but so that the stronger may help the less well placed and so the whole may benefit.

In this connection, attention may be called to a paragraph that appears in the Report of the Departmental Committee on the Cost of Hospitals and other Public Buildings, published this year :—

> "We have given full consideration to the relative claims of radiators and panels, and we recognise that the latter, whether embedded or applied, have certain advantages. The use of panels is, however, a comparatively recent development in heating practice, and there is insufficient evidence as to the cost of their operation and maintenance. We are, therefore, of opinion that radiators should be regarded as the standard practice until definite evidence is available as to the relative fuel consumption involved by the radiator system and the several types of the panel system. We hope that further steps may be undertaken in this direction by some competent authority."

The Central Bureau of Hospital Information has decided to take the further step suggested. In order that the information obtained may be as relevant and complete as possible, the Bureau has secured the services of an expert engineer, whose experience will enable him to gather not only such relevant information as is available, but also to take into consideration any local factors that have a bearing upon the subject of the enquiry. Visits are being paid to a large number of hospitals in which panel heating has been installed and the results will be embodied in a memorandum to be published later.

The enquiry is a genuine joint effort on the part of the producers and of the users to ascertain the merits and the demerits of a system of heating. Although it may involve a certain amount of trouble to users, this, as it is for the benefit of the Voluntary Hospitals as a whole, will not be grudged.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

By SIR CHARLES HARRIS, G.B.E., K.C.B.

(Late Permanent Head of the Finance Department, War Office.)
Hon. Financial Consultant to the Central Bureau of Hospital Information.

Of the 1,072 Voluntary Hospitals known to the Year-Book 69, as against 65 a year earlier, failed to furnish their 1935 figures. Notwithstanding this reduction of 4 hospitals, the number of beds covered by the Statistical Tables for that year rose by 1,007 (from 83,788 to 84,795); the aggregate total receipts (Capital and Maintenance) rose by £292,000 (from £16,497,000 to £16,789,000), and the maintenance income alone by £641,000 (from £13,548,000 to £14,189,000); while aggregate total expenditure rose by £603,000 (from £15,043,000 to £15,646,000) and maintenance expenditure alone by £496,000 (from £12,546,000 to £13,042,000). For Capital, not the single year but the long view matters, and the replacement of the capital surplus of £451,000 in 1934 by a deficit of £4,000 in 1935 is of no special significance; while the increase of the maintenance surplus of £1,002,000 in 1934 to £1,147,000 in 1935, showing a rise of £145,000 notwithstanding the growth of half a million in maintenance expenditure, is an eminently satisfactory result, if attention be confined to the aggregates.

But the distribution of these magnificent sums between the thousand separate hospital exchequers is less satisfactory. The numbers of maintenance surpluses and deficits and the aggregate figures of those balances respectively in the four Areas can be seen at a glance in Table 3 on page 50. While 52 hospitals crossed the borderline from surplus to deficit in 1935, the aggregate of the remaining 692 surpluses rose by £214,000 while that of the 311 deficits rose by £69,000; so that the net increased surplus of £145,000 was the result of 52 less surpluses, averaging each £440 more than in 1934, offset by 52 more deficits averaging each £42 more. Thus the year's working left the average prosperous hospital substantially richer and the average unprosperous hospital slightly poorer than in 1934—in other words, the element of maldistribution has increased. Looking at the several Areas, while the average surplus increased in each, by sums varying from £1,456 in Ireland and £1,281 in Scotland to £196 in the Provinces, the average deficit increased by £1,168 in Ireland, £292 in London and £23 in Scotland, but fell in the Provinces by £124.

The increased average surplus in each Area is attributable to a bumper year for free legacies which totalled for all hospitals £1,864,000 in 1935 as against £1,514,000 in 1934 and £1,601,000 in 1933, the rises per available bed over 1934 in the four Areas being £8 in London, £2 in the Provinces, £3 in Scotland and £10 in Ireland. In the last issue of the Year-Book it was shown that, taking a three years' moving average to eliminate yearly fluctuations, the trend of free legacies in the Provinces and Scotland together, per available bed, had been uniformly downward from £19·6 a year in 1929 to £17·0 in 1934; but 1935 has reversed the trend, producing £19·4 for the year and £17·3 for the three years' average. On the other hand, the feature (special to London) that nearly the whole of the free legacies are required, in addition to all " Ordinary " income, to cover current maintenance expenditure, still persists. With £33 per available bed from free legacies in 1935, London shows only a net surplus per available bed of £6·57, or but a fraction more than the 1934 figure of £6·46; while in 1933, when also the legacies produced £33 per bed, the surplus was nearly £15. Corresponding figures for 1935 are: in the Provinces, legacies per bed £16, surplus £14; and in Scotland, legacies £38, surplus £29.

King Edward's Hospital Fund for London distributed among the 145 hospitals on its list, in 1935, a total of £300,000 with a special " Jubilee " addition of £120,000 for capital purposes. After the distribution, these 145 hospitals in the five years beginning with 1931 had fared as under :—

	In 1930–34.
36 had 5 surpluses and no deficits ..	32
23 „ 4 „ „ 1 „ ..	25
29 „ 3 „ „ 2 „ ..	36
35 „ 2 „ „ 3 „ ..	25
14 „ 1 „ „ 4 „ ..	18
8 „ no „ „ 5 „ ..	9

Thus of the 145 hospitals, only 88 in 1935 as against 93 in 1934 had in the five years' period more frequent surpluses than deficits. These significant figures are not available for hospitals outside London.

Analysis of Ordinary Income (legacies excluded) is complicated by the difference of classification, in London and outside it respectively, of the increasingly important receipts from Contributory Schemes and similar sources, which the King's Fund shows under "Services Rendered" while the hospitals outside London continue to show them as Voluntary Gifts. The Year-Book heading in Table 4, "Workmen's Contributions, Hospital Saturday Funds and Contributory Schemes," contains elements of both kinds; but taking as the definition of a voluntary gift to a Hospital that it is characterised by absence of any expectation of personal benefit to the donor, which is not the case in the great majority of the receipts under this heading, I have transferred these receipts, for the purpose of what here follows, from "Voluntary Gifts" to "Services Rendered." So rearranged, the former heading shows an increase of some £29,000 in Great Britain outside London, owing to a recovery in Scotland under Subscriptions and Donations; but a heavy loss of over £5 per available bed in London, on Voluntary Gifts as a whole, resulted in a net loss under that heading, for Great Britain, of £46,000. Under Services Rendered there was a rise of £59,000 in London, of £225,000 in the Provinces and £26,000 in Scotland, making £310,000 for Great Britain. The transferred item, which in 1935 produced £40 per bed in the Provinces and £19 per bed in Scotland (where conditions, geographical and other, are less favourable in this respect) is not shown separately in the London analysis. Though Voluntary Gifts as a whole (after making the above transfer) continue to shrink, they still amount to nearly £3,500,000 a year, or about a quarter of the whole maintenance income—an indispensable contribution.

Interest on Investments per available bed, which fell slightly in London and the Provinces, rose by nearly £1 in Scotland. The cognate item of (capital) Invested Funds increased in London by £365,000 (£11 per available bed), in the Provinces by £533,000 (£4 per bed) and in Scotland by £266,000 (£15 per bed), making a total rise, in Great Britain, of £1,164,000 for the year; but lack of standardisation in the basis of valuation of investments leaves the interpretation of these figures doubtful. It should be remembered that for London they do not include capital held by the King's Fund.

As regards maintenance expenditure, 1935 was a year of well-established rise in price-levels of most commodities, wholesale and retail (cost of living) and to some extent in wages, causing a general rise in hospital expenditures, not only in bulk but also per available bed. There are still a large (and even increasing) number of hospitals which do not give their expenditure figures under the prescribed heads; but aggregate total expenditure (including Ireland) rose by about £500,000 and expenditure per available bed by about £4·25 in the year; and the rises in the four areas were respectively London £4·2, Provinces £4·3, Scotland £2·7 and Ireland £5·2 per available bed. For the 864 hospitals which analyse their expenditure correctly, all the main heads of analysis (in Table 5) rose in each area (with one small fall under "Other" in Scotland), the largest rises being all under Salaries and Wages (£1·6 per bed in London and the Provinces, £1·8 in Scotland and £2 in Ireland). It is clear that further general rises in hospital expenditure of all kinds are to be expected; and it must be hoped that the fortunate recipients of those higher earnings and profits in industry and commerce generally, which form 'the other side of the medal,' will see to it that Voluntary Gifts reverse their downward trend and at the very least keep pace with the growth of beds. In 1930, London Hospitals received Voluntary Gifts of £1,446,000 for maintenance (including the King's Fund distribution) and by 1935 this had shrunk to £1,334,000, a total fall of £112,000, while the amount per available bed fell from £90 to £75. Outside London the figures show a curious fixity, if they are rearranged in the manner explained above. In 1930, the total of Voluntary Gifts as shown in the Year-Book was £4,098,000, of which £2,028,000 falls to be transferred to "Services Rendered," leaving £2,070,000. In 1935 the corresponding figures are £4,457,000 less £2,382,000, leaving as pure voluntary gifts £2,075,000 or practically the same total as in 1930, with only a nominal £5,000 towards an increase in available beds of 14 per cent. in the five years. A minority of these are pay-beds, but the great majority make some demand on charitable funds.

Within living memory, the household and other expenditure of the general population largely followed local levels: local prices of important commodities, local rates of wages, etc. For many years, and especially since 1914, prices and wages have tended to move (upward, in the main) towards uniformity, though there remain some things which it is not yet an offence at law to sell at local and even competitive prices. Comment has often been made on the markedly higher level of hospital maintenance expenditure in London than elsewhere; and the more highly specialised and progressive modes of treatment, etc., arising from research in the Teaching Hospitals of London obviously form one factor in higher cost, though I have seen no attempt to express it in definite figures. The upward movement of local prices and wages towards metropolitan levels might be expected to narrow the differences between hospital costs in the several areas; but there is no trace of any such movement in the figures available in the Year-Book. The annual expenditure per available bed in London, not confined to teaching and other large hospitals, but averaged for all sorts and sizes, has in the past three years exceeded the corresponding figures for the other areas in Great Britain as under :—

		Annual Expenditure per Bed.	London in Excess per Bed.
London	1933 ...	227·6
	1934 ...	231·9	—
	1935 ...	236·1
Provinces	1933 ...	130·9	96·7
	1934 ...	133·6	98·3
	1935 ...	137·9	98·2
Scotland	1933 ...	118·6	109·0
	1934 ...	120·6	111·3
	1935 ...	123·3	112·8

These figures are not costs of occupied beds, but total yearly expenditure (including that on out-patients) related to size of the hospitals as measured by available beds. This is, of course, only a very rough mode of measurement; but, for what it is worth, it shows that the present tendency is for London to increase further its lead in expenditure on maintenance. A thorough sifting of the various causes in operation, with a quantitative money analysis, would be highly interesting and very possibly instructive. Here is a task ready to the hand of the first research student in hospital economics that the new education scheme for administrators may produce.

The analysed costs of occupied beds and out-patient attendances in individual hospitals (Tables 16–19) inevitably reflect the rising expenditure, only one of the 12 Teaching Hospitals in London showing a reduction (of 4*d.*) in the weekly cost of an in-patient; but one other hospital, with a 4*d.* increase, gives figures to show that for nine months of the year tea, sugar and butter formerly provided by the patients themselves were found by the hospital at a cost of nearly twice that increase, indicating some success in effecting economies in other directions. Among provincial Teaching Hospitals there are a few substantial decreases, possibly in cases where 1934 costs had been abnormally high; but a rise of some shillings in weekly cost is general. The three Scottish Teaching Hospitals which furnish the necessary figures show a rise of 2 shillings or more per week. Outside medical schools also the rise is everywhere general, though among smaller hospitals, where costs are liable to be largely influenced by empty beds, exceptions are more numerous.

These Tables are still disfigured by numerous blanks where figures are not forthcoming; and though some important provincial hospitals have mended their ways and effected the necessary separation of in-patient from out-patient expenditure, certain other important hospitals have discontinued furnishing the figures, not because they are not available, but apparently from a feeling that, as the proportion of pay-beds grows sufficiently for their higher costs to affect appreciably that average cost of all beds, in private and public wards alike, which the Revised Uniform System demands, the figures shown in the Tables (regarded as quasi-competitive) fail to do justice to the actual position.

A further point affecting entries in these Tables arises. They are prepared, under the R.U.S., by separating each hospital's " Ordinary Expenditure " (as shown in its Income and Expenditure Account) into in-patient and out-patient portions, dividing the former by the average daily occupied beds and the number of weeks in the year (Tables 16 and 17), and the latter by the number of attendances in the year (Tables 18 and 19). If this Ordinary Expenditure covers any work done for cases which are not reckoned as patients of the hospital itself, the Year-Book figures will be pro tanto too high. Thus, if a major hospital in its pathological laboratory does work relating to patients of a minor hospital, or of private practitioners, its expenditure (which may be important in total amount) must be removed from the expenditure side of its account. It is not enough to bring the sums recovered into the Income side as Earned Revenue. The accounts in the Annual Reports of certain provincial hospitals suggest doubt whether there may not be failures in this respect. The whole value of the financial statistics in this book for the hospitals outside London remains questionable, so long as effective standardisation is not attained; and it must be hoped that in these and other respects marked improvement will result from the labours of Lord Sankey's Commission.

As regards the other most prominent imperfection of these statistics—the delays in rendering the figures of individual hospitals, of which some measure has annually been given in this series of Reviews—the results for the present Edition are most disappointing, the percentage of hospitals reporting their 1935 results by 30 June being only 29 as against a previous best of 72 for 1932. But it appears that, in the pressure of work connected with the Commission, the Bureau did not send round its first formal application for figures until after that date, so that the collapse may be regarded as having only a psychological significance.

A request by the Bureau, to all hospitals in Great Britain, for particulars of patients from road accidents, the cost of their treatment and the proportions of it recovered by the hospital in 1934 and in 1935, met with response only from the small number of 184 hospitals. These showed a slight diminution in numbers of in-patients and in total cost, with a small increase (from 52 per cent. to 54 per cent.) in the proportion recovered. On these sample figures, which reflect the state of the law still obtaining, the hospitals are as severely mulcted as if they had been judicially found responsible, in at least the degree of contributory negligence, for the state of our roads.

PAY BEDS.

VOLUNTARY HOSPITALS (PAYING PATIENTS) ACT, 1936.

Kindly prepared for the Bureau by W. E. C. BAYNES, M.A., L.L.M. of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

General Effect of the Act.

1. The general effect of the Voluntary Hospitals (Paying Patients) Act, 1936, is that voluntary hospitals, whose property and funds are held on trusts which prevent them from providing pay beds, are now enabled, on satisfying the Charity Commissioners on certain points, to obtain an Order of the Commissioners authorising them to provide such beds notwithstanding the limitations of their trusts.

2. But the Act does not in any way prevent any hospital which already has power to provide pay beds from exercising that power, and it is first necessary to consider what hospitals are entitled to provide pay beds without the need of making any application to the Charity Commissioners.

Power to Provide Pay Beds.

3. Quite apart from the new Act, any voluntary hospital has power to provide pay beds so long as its property and funds are not held on such trusts, whether express or implied, as to preclude the idea of charges being made to patients for their treatment and maintenance.

4. The trusts on which property is held are usually express, that is, expressly declared by a foundation trust deed, a charter, a private Act of Parliament, or other legal document.

5. But the trusts may only be implied. For instance, when the hospital was established, the appeal for funds for its establishment may have stated that the hospital was intended to be used for the benefit of a particular class of persons, or there may be other circumstances which lead to the natural conclusion that the hospital is intended only for some limited class. In every such case the funds raised for the hospital can only properly be used for the purposes so implied.

6. If there are express trusts which contain a definite statement that the object of the hospital is to provide gratuitous treatment to its inmates, or some expression from which it must be inferred that gratuitous treatment is its only object, then the hospital has no power to provide pay beds. The same applies in the case of implied trusts indicating that the object of the hospital is so limited.

7. Even when there are express trusts, it is often difficult, owing to the ambiguity of the wording, to decide whether a particular hospital has power to provide pay beds or not.* In cases of doubt hospitals should now apply to the Charity Commissioners for authority. See Par. 9.

8. If it is only the rules or regulations of a hospital which prevent it from making charges to patients, the desired power to charge can be acquired by passing the necessary resolutions in the prescribed manner for the amendment of those rules or regulations.

Authority from Charity Commissioners.

9. Under the new Act the Charity Commissioners may make an Order granting authority for the use of existing buildings or any part of them, or for the erection of new buildings, for the treatment of paying patients, however restricted the powers of a hospital may be.

10. It is immaterial whether the original trusts of the hospital were declared by a foundation trust deed, by private Act of Parliament, by charter, or in any other manner.

11. It should, however, be noted that the Commissioners have no power under this Act to authorise a hospital to pay the capital cost of providing the pay beds out of any funds held upon special trusts. It will therefore usually be necessary for a hospital to raise a special fund for this purpose.

12. The Order of the Commissioners will prescribe what existing buildings may be employed, or what land may be used for the erection of a new paying block, the number of paying beds to be provided, the scale of charges to be made for accommodation and maintenance (including such medical and surgical attendance and treatment as is given by the resident staff of the hospital), and the period for which the authority is to remain in force.

* In one case where the object of a hospital was stated to be "to provide treatment for the relief of poor persons," the High Court interpreted the words "poor persons" to mean "persons who are unable to afford the ful cost of private treatment" and held that the hospital had power to provide pay beds for this class of persons.

13. Except in cases where the Commissioners are satisfied that it would be inappropriate so to do, a condition must be inserted in the Order that in the use of a specified number of beds priority shall be given to those patients who are unable to pay the full cost of treatment and maintenance, and the scale of charges is to include charges fixed to meet the needs of these patients.

14. The Order may also include any consequential or incidental provisions which the Commissioners consider to be necessary or desirable.

Conditions of Obtaining Authority.

15. If a hospital wishes to erect a new paying block on land the use of which is restricted by the trusts on which it is held, the Commissioners must be satisfied that there is no prospect of the land being used for the original purposes of the trust for a considerable time to come.

16. If it is proposed to use part of the hospital's existing buildings for pay beds, the Commissioners must be satisfied that it is not practicable (or soon will not be) to use that part for the purposes of the original trusts, either owing to lack of sufficient funds, or owing to lack of demand for accommodation by the class of persons for whose benefit the trusts were created.

17. Alternatively, the hospital may satisfy the Commissioners that it has, or is soon likely to have, other premises at its disposal which could be used for paying beds without any breach of trust, and that they will in fact be used by way of exchange for that part of the existing buildings which it is proposed to use for paying patients.

18. In every case the Commissioners must be satisfied that there will be no restriction of the amount of accommodation for non-paying patients * which is actually provided by the hospital at the time of applying to the Commissioners and which the hospital would be able to continue to provide if the Order were not made. In other words, the number of non-paying beds * can only be reduced if it is shown that the hospital is unable, for financial reasons, to continue to provide the existing number.

Application to Charity Commissioners.

19. Every application for an order should be made on a form to be obtained † from the Charity Commissioners, Ryder St., St. James's St., London, S.W.1.

Variation and Revocation of Orders.

20. The Commissioners may vary an Order from time to time on the application of the hospital concerned.

21. If the Commissioners consider that there has been any material change in the circumstances existing at the time the Order was made, they may vary or revoke the Order (without any application having been made to them), after giving to the hospital and to other persons appearing to be concerned an opportunity of making representations.

* Or whatever the category of persons may be for whose benefit the trusts of the hospital were created.

† These forms will be available as soon as the Rules referred to in section 5 of the Act have been prepared.

June 1936.

FRACTURE CASES.

conference between representatives of the British Medical Association and The British Hospitals Association.

Does your hospital accept the principle that the specialist must be provided with a team of whole-time assistants so that there may be continuity of treatment?		Does your hospital accept the principle that out-patient fracture cases should be the care of this special department until the completion of treatment? No	Obviously this question and number 4 depend upon the size of the Clinic. The Surgical Registrar is first assistant. The Casualty Officer is second assistant. The Massage Department is at present adequate—two Masseuses are specially instructed for this work.	Yes	But any case sent specifically to one of the General Surgeons may be treated by him although he is invited to refer all fracture cases to the Fracture Clinic. Worcester Royal Infirmary	165	Yes
Grimsby & District	164	—	Under consideration.
Birkenhead General	156	Yes
Hereford General	150	No	Most cases are admitted under the care of the surgeon on duty for the week, or are probably sent direct to the Orthopædic Department.
Manchester, Ancoats	150	Yes
Warrington Infirmary & Dispensary	142	Yes
Stockton-on-Tees, Stockton & Thornaby	140	Yes	There has been a Fracture Clinic and an Orthopædic Surgeon since 1927.
Stockport Infirmary	139	Yes	This principle has been acted upon since 1928.
Harrogate & District General	132	No
Wrexham & East Denbighshire	124	Yes
Gravesend & North Kent	121	Yes	This is done.
Eastbourne, Princess Alice Memorial	116	Yes	A Fracture Clinic was opened in April 1936.
Chichester, Royal West Sussex	114	No	The Board decided that it was not advisable that all fracture cases should be placed under the control of one member of the staff.
Bootle General	103	Yes

Several hospitals state that the reluctance on the part of the General Surgeons to give up their fracture work is an obstacle in the way of placing all fracture work under the control of one experienced Specialist. On the other hand one hospital states that the General Surgeons were quite pleased to be relieved of the treatment of fracture cases.

Three of the hospitals where the treatment of fractures is dealt with in the Orthopædic Departments gave particulars of the staffs as follows:—

Leeds General Infirmary.

Hon. Orthopædic Surgeon.
Hon. Assistant Orthopædic Surgeon.
Resident Orthopædic Officer.
Resident Orthopædic House Surgeon.
In addition it has been decided to appoint a full-time Orthopædic Registrar.
This staff is not only responsible for fracture work, but deals with all pure orthopædic work in the hospital.

Manchester, Ancoats Hospital.

Hon. Orthopædic Surgeon.
Two Assistant Surgeons who attend twice a week each.
Orthopædic House Surgeon, who is appointed for six months.
The Resident Surgical Officer also assists in the Fracture Clinic.

Bootle General Hospital.

Orthopædic Surgeon, M.Ch.(Orth.), F.R.C.S.(Eng.).
Orthopædic Clinical Assistant, M.Ch.(Orth.), F.R.C.S.(Ed.).
House Surgeon.

Two hospitals gave brief descriptions of the facilities provided, as follows:—

Blackburn & East Lancashire Royal Infirmary.

The Fracture Department consists of two wards, a male ward of nine beds and a female ward of four beds, together with an out-patient department. From its inauguration until December 31st, 1935, the Department treated 320 in-patients and 735 out-patients. Every case is treated by the same staff from beginning to end, and thus continuity of treatment is maintained.

The methods employed in the department are based on those used with such success by Professor Böhler, of Vienna.

Princess Alice Memorial Hospital, Eastbourne.

There are two wards each having ten beds; the sister-in-charge of the wards is also sister at the Clinic.

The surgeon-in-charge of the Fracture Clinic was previously a general surgeon at the hospital, but has since vacated the latter appointment, and one of the assistant surgeons has been appointed assistant surgeon to the Clinic.

All fracture cases, including cases sent for X-Ray only, are treated at the Clinic unless the patient's own doctor requests otherwise.

The Massage Department has also been placed under the control of the surgeon-in-charge of the Clinic.

A clerk does the necessary typing, which at present does not occupy much time.

WAITING LISTS

Selection from Waiting Lists.

In answer to the question " What is the method of selection from the waiting lists for admission " the majority of replies show that after " Urgency " the order on the waiting list is the factor next taken into consideration.

At several hospitals (particularly those associated with Medical Schools), patients are placed upon the waiting list for treatment by a particular surgeon, and consequently can only be admitted as vacancies occur in the beds under his control.

Several hospitals associated with Medical Schools state that regard must be taken of the suitability of the case from the point of view of teaching the medical students.

Three hospitals state that after admitting the most urgent cases (medically or surgically), social and economic factors are next taken into consideration.

Types of Cases on Waiting Lists.

In answer to the question " Can you give any indication of the types of cases which constitute the major portion of the Waiting list," 15 hospitals gave actual numbers, under their several categories, which are shown as percentages of the whole in the following table :—

Where numbers were not given, hernia, appendicitis and orthopædic cases were stated by 9, 8 and 8 hospitals, respectively, to account for a large proportion of the cases awaiting admission.

One hospital secretary expressed the opinion that waiting lists consist largely of the " so-called ' minor ' cases (hernia, varicose veins, etc.)," and considers that more effort should be made to ensure their early rehabilitation.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE SUPPLY OF GLASSES TO OUT-PATIENTS.

A. Hospitals where an Optician Attends.

Hpl.	No. of beds.	Payment by optician to the hospital for the privilege of attending.	Whether the patient has the option of taking the hospital prescription to any other optician.	Remarks.
A	350	Hospital gets 15% of cost of glasses supplied to patients.	No *	Under this arrangement the hospital knows precisely what the patients are charged. Previously there were instances of patients taking the ophthalmic surgeon's prescription to an optician and having to pay excessive charges. It was also found that certain patients, having received the advantage of free consultation with the ophthalmic surgeon, purchased a very expensive pair of glasses, and it was felt that this was not right. In the first instance one or two objections were made by patients who wished to obtain their glasses privately, but it was pointed out that the prescription was the property of the hospital and could only be used for the supply of glasses by the hospital opticians. The hospital is entirely satisfied with present arrangements and is inviting tenders each year. Preference is given to firms which only supply glasses to the public on a qualified medical officer's prescription.

H	400	Yes		Yes
I	400	No	No	Yes	The ophthalmic surgeons have proposed that an optician should attend at the hospital, but the Board have always adhered to the principle that the patients should have free choice of opticians, and no member of the hospital staff is allowed to recommend any particular optician. The system works very well.
J	350	No	No	Yes	The practice of allowing patients attending the ophthalmic department to choose their own optician was adopted at the request of the local Optical Society.
K	350	No	No (vide Remarks column)	Yes	The prescription is the property of the hospital. It must be used only for the dispensing of glasses in accordance with a scale of charges agreed to and approved by the committee. This practice works very well and enables all opticians to have a portion of the work.
L	350	No	No	Yes
M	350	No	No	Yes	Patients may obtain complete glasses or lenses from the hospital pharmacist. The pharmacist does not, however, deal with prescriptions of patients who are members of an Approved Society.
N	300		Yes (3)	Yes	Applications to attend at the hospital have been made by different opticians, but up to the present have not met with the approval of the Board.
O	300		Yes (2)	Yes	Objection to the procedure was taken by a local society several years ago, but the Committee decided to make no change.
P	300	No	No	Yes
Q	250	Yes		Yes
R	250	No	No	Yes	Unless the patient requests the name of an optician, no attempt is made to direct him to any particular person.
S	250	No	No	Yes	The opinion is expressed that if an oculist were to be appointed to attend at the hospital it would be detrimental to the institution.
T	200	No	No	Yes
U	150	No	No	Yes
V	100	No	No	Yes
W †	50	Yes		No *	Each year a local firm is selected by tender to supply lenses and frames. Measurements are taken by a member of the hospital staff and the patient selects the frame from specimens kept at the hospital. The prescription, particulars of the frame selected, and measurements are then sent to the firm which obtained the contract. They supply the glasses within one week.

* The prescription is the property of the hospital. † Eye hospitals.

MEMORANDUM No. 108.
(Replacing Memorandum No. 48.)

APPROVED SOCIETIES AND HOSPITAL TREATMENT.

(A) SOCIETIES WHICH HAVE INCLUDED HOSPITAL BENEFIT IN THEIR FOURTH VALUATION SCHEMES.

THE following is a list of Approved Societies which have included Hospital Benefit in their Fourth Valuation Schemes recently completed.

The question of the continuance of the benefit is re-considered by each society on each valuation, and schemes which include the benefit may be varied from time to time by the societies with the consent of the Minister of Health.

In the case of societies with branches, the branches do not necessarily provide the same benefits as the main body. Information regarding any individual branch can be obtained from the head office of the society.

Payment will be made by the societies only in respect of those members who were in the society during the time that the surplus out of which Hospital Benefit is payable, accrued.

It is necessary for a Hospital to furnish to the Approved Society the following particulars :—

.....Hospital.

Address .....

.....

To the.....Approved Society.

Particulars of cases treated as In-patients during the quarter ended.....

(1) Membership No.	(2) Surname.	(3) Christian Name.	Name of District or County.		(6) Treated as In-patient.
			(4) District.	(5) County.
					From To Weeks Days
				Total

N.B.—The day of admission and the day of discharge must be counted as one day.
NOTE.—This form is to be drawn up by the hospitals.

The addresses given are those for correspondence. They are not, in all cases, the Registered or Head Offices of the Societies.

Unless indicated otherwise the membership of all societies given in this list includes both sexes.

Societies which have (in addition to providing Hospital Benefit) allocated an annual sum for the purpose of making donations to charitable institutions are marked with a D. Societies which make donations only are given in list B later in this memorandum.

CATERING IN HOSPITALS.

In view of a very general interest in the matter of Catering in the Voluntary Hospitals, the following schedule has been prepared.

There is a growing recognition of the importance of the subject and a movement in the direction of making the purchase, the cooking and the presentation of food to patients and staff, a distinct and organized administrative unit.

The following summary of information recently supplied will give some idea as to how the responsibility is divided at present. From column 3 in the Schedule it would appear that in the larger hospitals the responsibility for the purchase of Provisions rests with the Secretary, while the cooking and service of the food is the responsibility of the Matron, except in a few instances (principally the larger hospitals) where the Secretary is responsible for all aspects of catering.

It is not possible from the returns sent in to generalise, but from some of the replies and the mention in a few instances of Catering Committees, Dieticians, Responsible Chefs, etc., there would appear to be an aroused interest in this most important part of hospital management, and an examination into a practice that is largely traditional. Several replies emphasise the importance of unity of control (purchase, cooking, and presentation of food). "In so many instances," says one correspondent, "I have had experience of the stores department dictating what articles of food should be included in the menu because there was nothing else in stock." Others lay stress upon the importance of special arrangements to ensure that the food is served hot to the patients. At one hospital, the staff, while not actually complaining, have from time to time mentioned how monotonous the meals are, and the Secretary thinks that there is something in what they say. "It is so difficult," he writes, "to get a kitchen staff with a spark of imagination." Another hospital secretary writes: "Here the Kitchen Department is nominally under the control of the Matron, and a Housekeeping Sister is directly in charge. There is, however, a growing feeling among the Committee that this is not necessarily the best arrangement and that the Kitchen should be in charge of someone with really good catering experience. I think this is quite a sound view, but I understand that the disadvantage from the Nursing point of view is that to divorce the Housekeeping side from the Nursing Department would close one avenue of training for the higher nursing posts in hospitals."

With regard to the staff responsible for the actual work itself, there is no uniformity. Sometimes the staff is male and sometimes female, sometimes outside qualifications are required, sometimes the experience gained in the hospital itself is regarded as sufficient. Doubt is expressed whether hospitals can afford to pay the salary required by an expert caterer.

A summary is given of the diet sheets sent in.

B	The private wing consists of single rooms only.		140 sq. ft.	Desirable in most cases, but not provided here.
C	The majority should be single rooms.	Do not think that rooms containing 2 beds are of much value. 4 or more spacious curtain-cubicles to a room might be provided for the poorest of the paying patient class, account for, say, 30% of the beds.	117–130 sq. ft.	No. But connections are provided in each room, and instruments on each floor.
D	No. Patients often dislike to be alone.	At least two-bedded rooms should be provided which are valuable for elderly patients desiring a relative or special nurse in constant attendance or for a child and mother.	144 sq. ft.	Should be available, but subject to control in cases where its use is contrary to medical advice.
E	95% should be single rooms.	5% should be two-bedded rooms.	120 sq. ft.	Yes.
F	Single-bedded rooms more suitable for all cases.	Single cubicles with curtains instead of doorway more satisfactory than two- or three-bedded rooms.	Provided the wardrobe is built in: 100 sq. ft.	Yes, if possible.
				PROVINCES.
G	Yes.		117 sq. ft.	No.
H	All the rooms are single-bedded.		14 × 12½ = 175 sq. ft. Rooms of slightly smaller dimensions would doubtless be adequate.	No.
I	Yes.	We find that two-bedded rooms are the least popular. If multiple wards are provided it is suggested there should be at least four beds in each.	180 sq. ft.	No, if plug points are provided a telephone instrument can be installed if required.
J	There are 18 single rooms.	Two wards containing six beds each have proved satisfactory.	90 sq. ft.	No.
K	No. There are so many different types of patient to be catered for.	Single wards. Four-bedded wards (cubicles). Four-bedded wards (associated). } 33⅓% of total beds to each. Rooms containing two beds are not recommended.	144 sq. ft.	Not provided—only requested twice in the past 10 years.
L	Single rooms for adult cases.	In a block of 40–50 beds 20% to 25% should be in rooms of two or three beds. It is inadvisable to have any child in a single room. The larger rooms should be adaptable to beds or cots.	15½ × 10 × 10⅔ ft. high with a window 7½ × 3½ ft.	No, provided one is available on each floor.
M	A few single rooms.	10% of the accommodation.		No.
N	Yes.		195 sq. ft.	No.
O	A high proportion of single-bedded rooms is desirable.	Two-bed rooms are unsatisfactory. The four-bed wards in this hospital are satisfactory.	120–130 sq. ft.	No, plug points might be installed.
P	Our single-bedded rooms are provided for those who desire privacy and who can afford the charge of £8 8*s*. per week.	Two-bedded rooms are not popular, and the same would probably apply to three-bedded rooms.	15 × 12 × 12¾ ft., which we consider ideal.	In single rooms only.

"PRIVATE" PATIENTS

MENTS AND OF FACILITIES PROVIDED.

Whether a silent indicator light call-system between patients and staff unsupported by a buzzer is considered satisfactory.	Whether the provision of a separate operating theatre is necessary or desirable.	Whether an entirely separate staff of certificated nurses is necessary, to the exclusion of probationer nurses.	Whether paying patients are under the care of one of the honorary staff or of any outside physician or surgeon of their own choice.	Desirability of all patients being charged the same fee for a single room or a scale of fees according to the size and position of the room occupied.
No.	No.	No.	Operations may only be performed by a member of the honorary staff. A member of honorary staff must be selected for consultation on admission, but subsequent treatment may be carried out by patient's doctor.	A scale of fees.
No, as there are several corridors.	Desirable, but not the case in this hospital.	Yes.	Patients are under the care of either a member of the honorary staff, or a specialist on a rota of approved surgeons.	The same fee in every case.
No.	Necessary. One to maximum of 30 beds, then two or more.	The proportion of probationer nurses should be lower, but they should not be excluded altogether, especially as it is a good experience for them.	All under our own honorary staff. Outside doctors are permitted to co-operate with the consent of the member of the honorary staff.	Scale of fees according roughly to means; and varied accommodation.
Present call system provides an indicator light and low-tone buzzer which is entirely satisfactory. Have no experience of system of lights only, but such must be inevitably less fool-proof.	Most desirable.	Yes.	Only under consulting or honorary staff.	A fixed charge simplifies administration, but in practice it is usually found necessary to have a scale of fees, particularly if there is any variation in the quality of the rooms. Patients means also considered.
No.	Necessary in most cases, but depends upon the size of the unit.	Yes.	A member of honorary staff or a consultant of a recognised London hospital.	On a scale according to size and position of the room.
No.	Depends upon the size of pay-bed block, and its distance from existing theatres.	No. It is advisable to have a few probationers for answering bells, carrying trays, etc.	Honorary staff only.	A scale of fees recommended only in a large pay-bed block. Suitably priced rooms not always available in a small block.
Yes.	Yes.	Yes.	Patient's own doctor (there is no honorary medical staff here).	A fixed fee.
The system in use here is supported by buzzers in duty rooms only, and works admirably.	Yes, this is essential in a block of any size.	No. It has been found practicable to employ one probationer to every two trained staff nurses.	Any consultative opinion, operative treatment or specialist services must be rendered by a member of the medical or surgical staff of the hospital. Otherwise patients may be attended by their own doctors.	A flat rate maintenance charge to all patients.
No. There is a buzzer and a light in the corridor on the side on which the patient's room is, and a light over the patient's room door.	Desirable from every point of view.	Yes, this is desirable although not always practicable on account of cost. Junior nurses are on duty three months at a time.	All patients are under the care of the medical staffs of this and other hospitals in the city.	Scale of fees according to accommodation.
No. We have the light and buzzer. A light-tone buzzer is essential.		Staffing with certificated nurses and probationers has been tried, but now staff consists of certificated nurses only.	Honorary staff.	A fixed charge.
No.	No.	No, probationer nurses are most useful.	Patients may have their own choice, but only those "regularly practising surgery" are permitted to perform operations.	One scale fee for all wards of the same type, provided all are reasonably situated.
The light should be supported by one buzzer to each floor.	This depends upon local conditions, and the general lay-out of the main hospital buildings, and if the pay-bed block is distant from the main operating block a separate one is essential.	No, probationers should not be entirely excluded, but preference should be given to those in their third year.	Patients have free choice of doctor provided that doctor has certain qualifications and experience. In practice practically all private patients have been under the care of the honorary staff of the hospital.	A fixed fee. The size of the room should not be a factor.
Yes.	Very desirable.	No.	Honorary staff.	According to scale.
No practical experience of this method.	Highly desirable.	No.	Honorary medical staff.	Scale of fees.
No. There are periods in the day when a light signal might be overlooked if unsupported by a buzzer.	Desirable, and if outside surgeons operate, is necessary.	No, but the ratio of certificated nurses to untrained should be higher than elsewhere in the hospital. First year probationers should not be sent to private wards.	Surgical cases are under the care of the honorary staff, otherwise all patients are under the care of their own doctor.	A fixed charge.
The buzzer in connection with the light call system can be cut out when desired; it is not used very much, and is soft toned.	Yes.	Certificated nurses would be ideal, but staff averages: 2 sisters, 1 night sister, 5 staff nurses, 9 probationers (including one first-year probationer).	Honorary medical staff.	A fixed charge.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Object of Survey.

THE object of this Survey is the presentation in as full detail as possible of the position of the Hospitals in Great Britain and Ireland with reference to certain special features which may be summarised thus :—

(a) The facilities available for treatment,

(b) The extent to which they are utilised,

(c) The annual cost of maintaining these facilities, and (d) The sources and extent of the funds by which they are maintained.

Arrangement of Tables.

In the main tables the Voluntary Hospitals are grouped under the headings :—

Group A. Hospitals having 100 or more beds.
Group B. Hospitals having 30 to 99 beds.
Group C. Hospitals having less than 30 beds.

In addition, Tables of the details of the work and finances of the following special groups are given :—

General Hospitals associated with Medical Schools.
" " without Medical Schools containing 200 or more available beds.
" " " " " " 150 to 199 " "
" " " " " " 125 to 149 " "
" " " " " " 100 to 124 " "
" " " " " " 30 to 99 " "
" " " " " " Less than 30 " "

Children's Hospitals.
Ear, Nose and Throat Hospitals.
Eye Hospitals.
Women's Hospitals.
Maternity Hospitals, etc., etc.

Adjustments to figures.

An attempt has been made to present the figures of all hospitals upon the basis of the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts. Slight divergences from the figures published in the Annual Reports of a few hospitals will consequently be found.

The figures in the Tables giving particulars of groups of hospitals include the returns made by a few hospitals covering a period longer than 12 months. This is generally due to some such cause as the changing of the date of the termination of the official year.

Definition of London area.

For the purposes of the Statistical Tables and the Directory of Voluntary Hospitals, London is regarded as the area covered by King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, viz., 11 miles from St. Paul's Cathedral. This area includes portions of the counties of Essex, Hertfordshire, Kent, Middlesex and Surrey in addition to the whole of the County of London. Similarly, all hospitals under the control of the London County Council are grouped together, whether they are situated in the County of London or not.

"Available" beds of London hospitals.

The figures of "available" beds of the London hospitals are the average daily bed complement during the year after deducting beds temporarily closed for Rebuilding, Extensions, Repairs, or other causes.

Thanks.

The Editors desire to express their thanks to King Edward's Hospital Fund for London for the leave, so kindly granted, to use the figures in its Statistical Report on the London hospitals for the purpose of compiling the Tables which appear in the Year-Book ; to all those Chairmen and Officers of the Voluntary Hospitals who so kindly supply the information upon which the statistics are compiled, and to the Public Authorities who also most kindly give particulars concerning the institutions for which they are responsible.

Medical Officer of Health : Sir Frederick Menzies, K.B.E., M.D., LL.D., F.R.C.P.(Ed.), D.P.H., F.R.S.E.

NOTES.
Ambulances.—The Council controls its own Ambulance service; for particulars see page 245.
Pathological Services.—A pathological service is available to all hospitals through a number of group laboratories, which are staffed by pathologists, assistant pathologists, and technicians. Each group laboratory is responsible for the pathological work of hospitals in its district. The majority of the general hospitals included in this scheme are also each provided with a hospital laboratory staffed by a technician, where routine pathological work is done.

LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL AMBULANCE SERVICE.

HEADQUARTERS: THE COUNTY HALL, S.E. 1. Telephone No.: Waterloo 3311.

I. Ambulances Supplied without Payment.

THE Council provides, within the Administrative County of London, ambulances, free of cost, for the conveyance to :—

(A) Hospitals and/or private residences of :—

(i) Persons meeting with accidents or suffering from sudden illnesses in the streets, public places, places of employment, etc.

(ii) Persons meeting with accidents in their homes;

(iii) Persons suffering from illnesses in their homes if a medical practitioner certifies that the case is one of life or death, and that arrangements have been made for the reception of the patient in a hospital;

(iv) Parturient women, if the case is one of urgency, whether from the home, place of business, or elsewhere, on the application of a qualified medical practitioner or certified midwife, provided that either a doctor or midwife accompanies the case; and

(v) Non-urgent cases of parturition.

In such cases admission to a maternity bed must have previously been arranged and a card (issued by the Council to hospitals, maternity homes, etc.) for such admission obtained. This card must be handed to the ambulance attendant at the time of removal.

In these cases the husband or a female friend must accompany the patient.

(Note.—The Corporation of the City of London maintains its own ambulance service for dealing with cases of accident and illness occurring in the streets within the City area.)

How to obtain an ambulance for :—

Cases coming under classes A (i) and (ii).

No telephone number is required; ask the operator merely for "AMBULANCE."

Cases coming under classes A (iii), (iv) and (v).

Ask the telephone operator (or dial) for one of the headquarters telephone numbers, namely: WATerloo 6000, NEW Cross 2645, CENtral 6301, or REGent 4000.

(B) The Council's hospitals for infectious cases.

(C) The Council's hospitals and institutions for non-infectious cases.

II. Ambulances Supplied on Payment.

(D) Ambulances and ambulance omnibuses are also provided by the Council, when not required for the purposes stated above, on payment of charges, as laid down from time to time by the Council, for the conveyance of infectious and non-infectious cases between private houses, hospitals (other than to the Council's hospitals, etc., under the provisions of Section I) nursing homes and for examinations, consultations and treatment by specialists or at special establishments.

The conveyance of private persons between addresses both of which are outside the administrative county of London cannot be undertaken, unless in circumstances of exceptional urgency.

How to obtain an ambulance for :—

Cases coming under classes (B), (C) and (D) :—

Application should be made by telephone to Headquarters Telephone No. WATerloo 3311, when full information and the charge for any proposed removal may be obtained at any hour of the day or night, including Sundays and public holidays.

THE VOLUNTARY HOSPITALS COMMISSION.

SUMMARY OF THE REPORT.*

Preface. The Enquiry in the "Terms of Reference" is answered in the affirmative and recommendations are made accordingly.

Chapter I. A General Survey of the position of the Voluntary Hospitals shows that they render a valuable and important public service and should be preserved. There is, however, grave lack of co-operation and co-ordination between them, and proposals to remedy this defect are outlined.

Chapter II. Much is to be learnt from the findings of the Voluntary Hospitals Committee (1921) (the "Cave" Committee). If the recommendations of this Committee had been fulfilled much of this Report would have been unnecessary.

Chapter III. Great credit is due to The British Hospitals Association for its work for the Voluntary Hospitals. Fulfilment of the proposals in this Report should be by their incorporation in the work of the Association reorganised as far as necessary.

Chapter IV and Appendix II. Instances of lack of co-ordination in Present Hospital Organisation are: (i) provision of new hospitals or extensions of hospitals without due regard to needs; (ii) building or extension of a hospital without proper consideration of the resulting increased maintenance cost; (iii) congestion in some hospitals and empty beds in others; (iv) want of definition of the scope of work of hospitals; (v) defects in hospital staffing; (vi) lack of grouping of hospitals; (vii) a too parochial outlook on hospital problems; (viii) mal-direction of benefactions. Examples of steps already taken to rectify the above defects are given.

Chapter V. Central and Regional Organisation. The division of the country into regions with the formation of a Central Council and Regional Councils is recommended. The duties of these new bodies are specified. Methods of meeting their expenses are proposed.

Chapter V. The Grading of Hospitals into Central, District and Cottage Hospitals is recommended.

Chapter VI. Finance. If the financial position of the Voluntary Hospitals could be taken as a whole, it might be regarded as satisfactory. The financial resources of hospitals are, however, separate and therefore the difficulties of many with deficits are not removed. Pooling of resources is not regarded as acceptable at present. The establishment of Regional Funds is recommended.

Chapter VI. Uniform System of Accounts. The ideal in hospital accounting has not yet been reached. The "Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts," the system adopted by King Edward VII's Hospital Fund for London, subject to modifications, is recommended for universal adoption.

Chapter VI. State Grants in Aid for Voluntary Hospitals are approved. Methods of obtaining such grants are left for the proposed Central Council to devise.

Chapter VII. Improved methods for the Collection of Funds are suggested.

Chapter VII. Contributory Schemes are welcomed and their universal adoption is advocated. The principles which should govern a Scheme are stated.

Chapter VIII. Recommendations are made on Accommodation for Hospital Patients. The main objectives of these are: (i) a sufficiency of beds; (ii) avoidance of empty beds side by side with Waiting Lists; (iii) placing patients where their disabilities are best cared for; (iv) efficient co-operation between Voluntary and Council Hospitals; (v) arrangements for ready transfer of patients.

Chapter IX. Provision of Accommodation for Paying Patients of all classes is recommended. Provident Schemes for patients of moderate means are welcomed.

Chapter X. The scope of work and the conduct of The Out-patient Department are discussed. Remedies for over-crowding and undue waiting are considered.

Chapter XI. The advice of appropriate experts is recommended in making Appointments of the Visiting Medical Staff. A formal agreement between hospital and staff member is advocated.

Chapter XI. The principle of Payment of the Visiting Medical Staff is approved subject to certain qualifications.

Chapter XII. Measures are advocated to attract more entrants to The Nursing Service. A higher educational standard for entrants is recommended. Preliminary Training Schools are regarded as essential. Increased remuneration, shorter duty hours and suitable Nurses' Homes are amongst other subjects considered.

* Published 30th April, 1937. Obtainable from The British Hospitals Association, 12 Grosvenor Crescent, London, S.W.1. Price 1*s.* 2*d.* post free.

Chapter XIII. Administrative Services. The chief administrative officer of a hospital should be specially qualified. A definite scheme of training for administrative services is recommended.

Chapter XIV. Entrants to Auxiliary Services —Pharmacists, Almoners, Massage Staff, Technical Assistants—should hold statutory qualifications where available or should be otherwise specially qualified.

Chapter XV. The pooling of Ambulance Service on a regional basis under Local Authorities is recommended with the full co-operation of voluntary agencies. A moderate uniform charge to the patient, with remission in certain circumstances, is recommended.

Chapter XVI. The Special Position of the Teaching Hospitals is considered and certain arrangements desirable in regard to them are discussed.

Chapter XVII. Patients' Records. Research. The importance of these and of "Follow-up" methods is emphasised. The keeping of Records at the Regional Office—with due precautions as to their confidential character—is recommended.

Chapter XVIII. Publicity Methods are discussed. A Press Bureau and a Hospital Periodical —both conducted by the Central Council—are recommended.

Chapter XIX. A chapter is devoted to the special position of the Voluntary Hospitals in Scotland with particular reference to the Local Government Act (1929) for Scotland.

Chapter XX and Appendix II. The Relationship between Voluntary and Council Hospitals and the extent of existing co-operation are discussed. The opinion is expressed that co-operation should be fully developed.

PRINCIPAL RECOMMENDATIONS.

1. The division of the country into Hospital Regions.
2. The formation in each region of a Voluntary Hospitals Regional Council to correlate hospital work and needs in the region.
3. The formation of a Voluntary Hospitals Central Council to co-ordinate the work of the Regional Councils.
4. The establishment of Central and Regional Offices.
5. The initiation of the above scheme by The British Hospitals Association with the subsequent incorporation of the scheme in the work of the Association.
6. The grouping of hospitals in a region round a central Hospital.
7. The grading of hospitals into Central, District, and Cottage Hospitals.
8. The creation of a Regional Fund for the benefit of all the hospitals in a region.
9. The payment of the expenses of the new organisations proposed from hospital and Regional Funds and from Government Grants.
10. The adoption by all hospitals of a Uniform System of Accounts.
11. The securing of financial aid for hospitals from the State and from the Local Authorities.
12. The adoption of improved methods for the collection of funds for hospitals.
13. The setting-up, or development to the full, in all regions of Contributory Schemes.
14. The making of arrangements by which all the hospital beds in a region can be utilised in the best interests of patients and to the fullest extent.
15. The full provision of Auxiliary Hospitals to relieve the main hospitals.
16. The undesirability of the establishment of Special Hospitals and the affiliation—as far as possible—of those at present existing with General Hospitals.
17. The establishment of machinery to obviate congestion in some hospitals and empty beds in others.
18. The provision by all hospitals of accommodation for paying patients.
19. The restriction of attendance at Out-patient Departments of hospitals by adopting certain limitations and the taking of steps to remedy the present inconveniences of departments.
20. The making of appointments to the Visiting Medical Staff of a hospital under the guidance of appropriate experts.
21. The appointment of a member of the Visiting Medical Staff of a hospital to be governed by a formal agreement between such member and the hospital.
22. The payment—with certain qualifications—of the Visiting Medical Staff.
23. In regard to the Nursing Service: (i) the improvement of the conditions, including higher pay for trained nurses; (ii) the adoption of a higher educational standard for entrants; (iii) the commencement of training in all cases by attendance at Preliminary Training Schools; (iv) the recognition of the position of the Matron as an administrative officer and her direct access to Committees when matters affecting her department are under consideration; (v) the universal adoption of a Pensions Scheme.

24. The recognition of the special qualifications required for the chief administrative officer of a hospital.
25. The furtherance of a definite scheme of education in hospital administration.
26. The universal adoption of a Pensions Scheme for the administrative staff.
27. The provision of the services of a qualified accountant for hospital accounting when required.
28. The consideration of the advisability of separating the collection of funds from administration.
29. The securing of those holding statutory qualifications for some auxiliary services in hospitals and of those specially qualified through a recognised test for certain others.
30. The organisation of the ambulance service in a region by the Local Authorities and the adoption—with certain exceptions—of a moderate charge to the patient for the service.
31. The recognition of the special requirements of Teaching Hospitals.
32. The keeping by all hospitals of Patients' Records on a uniform system of classification : a Record Department at each Regional Office.
33. The furtherance by hospitals of Research and of " Follow-up " methods.
34. The publication by hospitals of Annual Clinical Reports.
35. The adoption of suitable publicity methods for hospitals with formation of a Press Bureau and the publication of a periodical.
36. The special organisation of the Voluntary Hospitals in Scotland.
37. The practical recognition by all hospitals of the powers conferred by Section 13 of the Local Government Act, 1929, with full co-operation as regards provision for the public health between Voluntary Hospitals and Local Authorities.

THE INTERNATIONAL HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION.

The International Hospital Association was formed in Vienna in 1931 for the purpose of organising the exchange of information on all aspects of hospital service between the different nations of the world. With this in view it encourages the formation of National Hospital Associations, co-ordinates the work which they do, and promotes friendly co-operation between them.

Congresses and Study Tours.

By means of International Hospital Congresses the Association brings hospital leaders of every nation together to discuss hospital problems and methods of solving them. It offers to its members the opportunity of obtaining a knowledge of the hospital systems of other countries by means of its Study Tours.

Study Committees.

It has established permanent Study Committees, each under the chairmanship of an admitted expert on the subject, which deal with the following aspects of hospital work :—

Building.
Equipment and Technical Installation.
Hospital Administration and Management.
Accountancy and Finance.
Legislation.
Care of the patient in the Hospital.
Dietetics.
Personnel.
Statistics and Nomenclature.
Outside Relationship of the Hospital.

" Nosokomeion."

The Association publishes a quarterly hospital review, called " Nosokomeion," which is printed in French, German, and English. It contains articles of up-to-date interest on hospital subjects by leading authorities and is the official mouthpiece of the Association.

Origin of the Association.

The Association owes its origin to such outstanding leaders of hospital opinion as Dr. René Sand of Belgium, Dr. Tandler of Vienna, Dr. W. Alter and J. Wirth of Germany, Dr. A. von Soos of Hungary, Dr. Hans Frey of Switzerland, and many others. In the establishment of this international organisation The British Hospitals Association took a notable part, and Mr. W. H. Harper and Mr. J. Rowse Mitchell were its delegates to both Paris and Atlantic City, where the first steps were taken towards its formation.

The Association was formally established at a Conference held in Vienna in 1931 at which 43 nations were represented. Since that date Congresses have been held at Knocke-sur-Mer (1933) and at Rome (1935), and a further Congress will take place in 1937 at Paris. In the intervening years Study Tours have been organised at Frankfurt, Switzerland, and Czechoslovakia.

Constitution.

The Constitution which the Association passed in 1931 is at present in course of revision by an International Committee, and new statutes will be submitted for the approval of the Assembly of Members at the Paris Congress.

Finances.

The accounts of the Association, of which Messrs. Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths & Co. have generously consented to act as Honorary Auditors, show that the minimum amount required for its effective functioning is £1500 per annum, and with the increasing expansion and range of its activities and with the opportunities for more useful international service which are open to it, the Association will in the future require to aim at a much higher figure.

Membership.

The revenue of the Association is derived at present from contributions from National Hospital Associations, which vary in amount according to the size and wealth of each country, and from Associate Membership fees.

Associate Membership.

Associate Membership is offered to individuals and individual institutions at an annual subscription of £1, which includes the receipt of " Nosokomeion," every quarter. This form of membership is taken up by hospital leaders in all parts of the world—doctors, matrons, administrators, organisers, etc. It is particularly of benefit to those whose work lies far afield, in Australia, New Zealand, West and South Africa, South America, India, China, and who are thus enabled to keep in touch with the latest ideas on hospital matters.

Industrial Membership.

Industrial Membership is offered to commercial firms who are supplying hospital requirements. The subscription for this form of membership is £2 per annum, and for this sum they are not only entitled to receive "Nosokomeion" but to be shown in the Association's list of hospital firms which appears in every number of the magazine along with a list of the goods they supply.

Central Archives.

The Association has its Central Archives at Zürich under the charge of Mr. P. Manz, Superintendent of the Cantonal Women's Hospital. Here records of publications in all languages on hospital subjects are available and enquiries are dealt with by reference to suitable authorities.

Office-bearers.

The office-bearers of the Association are :—

President :

Dr. G. von Deschwanden, Lucerne, Switzerland.

Deputy-President :

Professor F. Pulcher, V. Direttore Sanitario, Ospedale Pammatone, Genoa, Italy.

Honorary Presidents :

Geheim. Reg.-u. Medizinalrat Dr. W. Alter, Buchschlag, Hessen, Germany.

Dr. E. H. L. Corwin, Academy of Medicine, New York, U.S.A.

Dr. René Sand, Conseiller Technique, Ligue des Sociétés de la Croix-Rouge; Conseiller Technique, Ministère de la Santé Publique; Brussels, Belgium.

Vice-Presidents :

Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern, M.D., Associate Director, American College of Surgeons, Chicago, U.S.A.

Monsieur Sarraz-Bournet, Inspecteur Général des Services Administratifs, Paris, France.

Other members of the Executive Committee :

Dr. B. Albert, Chief Physician, Bata Hospital, Zlin, Czechoslovakia.

Sir Harold Pink, J.P., Chairman of Council, British Hospitals Association, London.

Dr. R. Zeitler, Vizepräsident des Deutschen Gemeindetages, Berlin, Germany.

Archivist :

Herr P. Manz, Verwalter der Kantonalen Frauenklinik, Zürich, Switzerland.

Honorary General Secretary and Treasurer :

Sydney Lamb, M.B.E., F.C.I.S., 87 Lord Street, Liverpool, England.

Foreign Correspondent :

Miss Rodney Murray, M.A., 87, Lord Street, Liverpool, England.

Congress at Paris, 1937.

The Congress of the Association will be held from 6th to 10th July in Paris. Lectures, addresses, and discussions will take place in the Maison de la Chimie, and an interesting series of visits to notable hospitals will be arranged.

Study Tours or Congress in England.

It is hoped that either a Study Tour of English Hospitals or a Congress will be held in England within the next two years. This matter will be decided by the Association at its Paris Congress in July.

THE UNITED KINGDOM COUNCIL OF THE INTERNATIONAL HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION.

In order to form a truly representative body of hospital service and opinion in the United Kingdom, the leading national associations (detailed below) connected with the various branches of hospital work were, on the initiative of The British Hospitals Association and leading members of the International Hospital Association, invited to appoint three representatives each, to form a United Kingdom Council.

A Constitution has been drawn up and the following office-bearers have been appointed :—

Chairman :

H. L. Eason, C.B., C.M.G., M.D., M.S.

Joint Honorary Secretaries :

R. H. P. Orde, B.A., Honorary Secretary, British Hospitals Association.

F. W. Adams, Assistant Secretary, Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain.

Honorary Treasurer :

Sydney Lamb, M.B.E., F.C.I.S., Secretary, Merseyside Hospitals Council, 87, Lord Street, Liverpool, 2.

The Council has nominated a sub-committee which is organising participation in the Paris Congress, and making preparations for extending hospitality to the International Hospital Association in 1938 or 1939.

The sub-committee is also occupying itself with the collection of information regarding features of hospital interest in the United Kingdom, which it hopes to publish in a convenient form for the guidance of visitors from overseas, and also to place on record in an accessible form for the purpose of answering enquiries received from other countries.

The member organisations of the United Kingdom Council are :—

Association of Hospital Matrons.
British Hospitals Association.
British Hospitals Contributory Schemes Association.
British Medical Association.
British Red Cross and Order of St. John Hospital Library.
Chartered Society of Massage and Medical Gymnastics.
College of Nursing.
County and County Borough Hospital Matron's Association.
Hospital Almoners' Association.
Incorporated Association of Hospital Officers.
Joint Council of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society.
National Association of Local Government Officers.
Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain.
Royal Institute of British Architects.
Society of Radiographers.

Communications to the United Kingdom Council should be addressed to the Joint Honorary Secretary, 17, Bloomsbury Square, London, W.C. 1.

THE BOARD OF REGISTRATION OF MEDICAL AUXILIARIES.

THE Board was incorporated in 1936, being promoted by the British Medical Association, the Society of Apothecaries, the Chartered Society of Massage and Medical Gymnastics, the Society of Radiographers, and the Dispensing Opticians Association.

Membership of the Board is confined to (a) corporate bodies interested in the promotion of medical auxiliary work or any branch thereof, or the training, education, or examination of persons engaged or proposing to be engaged therein, or the improvement of their status; (b) individuals authorised to represent any corporate or unincorporated bodies so interested; and (c) such other classes of persons as the Council may from time to time determine. The British Medical Association, the Society of Apothecaries, the Chartered Society of Massage and Medical Gymnastics and the Society of Radiographers are permanent Members of the Board; the qualifications granted by the latter three bodies have been approved as recognised qualifications and may be registered with the Board.

The Board is not a qualifying body.

The primary object of the Board is to establish and make known a Register of persons engaged or intending to be engaged in technical and other work, and practising sciences and subjects ancillary, allied or auxiliary to or associated with medical science or the work of the medical profession, to be known as "The National Register of Medical Auxiliary Services." The Register is established for the following purposes :—

(1) To record the names of Medical Auxiliaries who are the holders of Approved Qualifications in Medical Auxiliary Work and also the particular qualifications of such Auxiliaries.
(2) To afford a mutually beneficial means of maintaining contact between Registered Medical Practitioners and duly qualified Medical Auxiliaries.
(3) To encourage the employment of duly qualified assistants and to prevent the exploitation by untrained persons of Medical Auxiliary Work.

The Board will also endeavour inter alia (a) to promote the training, education, and interests, and to improve the status, of medical auxiliaries; (b) to promote amendments in the law relating to medical auxiliary work and persons practising or intending to practise therein, and if thought desirable, to promote legislation for the State recognition and protection of an Official Register of persons engaged in Medical Auxiliary Work or any branch thereof; (c) to facilitate the exchange of information and ideas affecting Medical Auxiliary Work; (d) to advise and assist persons whose names are for the time being in the Register; (e) to provide information concerning Qualified Medical Auxiliaries, not only for the use of the Medical profession, but also of Institutions, Spas, Town and County Councils and other official bodies for general reference.

All medical auxiliaries whose names appear in the National Register have signed an undertaking that they will not undertake any Medical Auxiliary Work for any person except under the direction and control of a Registered Medical Practitioner.

A copy of the Register will be supplied, post-free, on application to the Registrar, Board of Registration of Medical Auxiliaries, Tavistock House (North), Tavistock Square, London, W.C.1.

TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR NURSES.

I. CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH HOSPITALS ARE APPROVED AS TRAINING SCHOOLS.

II. SCHEMES UNDER WHICH NURSES MAY BE TRAINED FOR ADMISSION TO THE STATE REGISTER.

CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH HOSPITALS ARE APPROVED AS TRAINING SCHOOLS.

BEFORE any hospital or group of hospitals can be approved the authorities of such hospitals are required to submit to the General Nursing Council particulars as to—

(a) training material available;
(b) the variety of experience assured to each probationer;
(c) in the case of grouped hospitals information as to the hospital in which each variety of experience is to be obtained, and
(d) the educational facilities offered and the systematic arrangements made whereby the attendance of each probationer at a series of lectures on the prescribed subjects is assured.

(1) For Training in General Nursing.

(a) As a Complete Training School.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it provides experience in the four main services—medical, surgical, gynæcological, and children's diseases, and also an adequate staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

That it has at least one Resident Medical Officer.

That the period of training is not less than three years.

In a hospital where the work is mainly surgical approximately one-third of the beds should be devoted to medical work.

In a hospital where the work is mainly medical, approximately one-third of the beds should be devoted to surgical work.

(i) There are other hospitals which are sufficiently large but from deficiency of clinical material in some branch cannot be approved as Complete Training Schools. Such hospitals will be required to associate themselves with another hospital or hospitals in order to supply for their nurses that part of the training in which they are deficient.

The hospitals applying for approval under this category must each have a Resident Medical Officer.

The period of training must extend over three years and six months, of which not less than six months must be spent in the hospital which is supplying the deficiency of clinical material.

The Council is prepared to consider any scheme for carrying out such an arrangement, and it will be for the hospitals who propose to associate themselves to satisfy the Council that the arrangements will be adequate to afford a complete training.

(ii) The Council is prepared to consider schemes whereby a general hospital for men only, one for women only, and one for children only, may respectively work together to furnish the necessary training according to the prescribed Syllabus. The period of training may be divided amongst the three hospitals as may be convenient, provided that adequate training in the four main services is assured, and that the subjects of the Preliminary Examination (see Preface to Syllabus of Subjects for Examination) are taught in the first hospital to which the nurse goes for training, so far as they can be taught in that hospital. The training in this case extends over four years if the Council so decide.

Such hospitals will be entitled "Associated Hospitals."

(c) Affiliated Groups of General Hospitals.

There are many hospitals which are not sufficiently large to provide adequate clinical material, teaching staff, and equipment for complete training, but these may be approved in affiliation with a hospital of the kind dealt with in Regulation (1) (a) above.

The period of training must extend over four years, of which the first two years must be spent in the smaller hospital in preparation for the Preliminary Examination. The Probationers should be transferred to the larger hospital for the final two years, after passing the Preliminary Examination.

The Council is prepared to consider any scheme for carrying out such an arrangement, and it will be for the hospitals who propose to affiliate themselves to satisfy the Council that the requirements for a four years' training are fulfilled by the scheme proposed.

Such hospitals will be entitled "Affiliated Hospitals."

Nurses trained for two years in approved Special Hospitals as mentioned below will be eligible for the Final Examination for the General Part of the Register when they have undergone a subsequent two years' training in a General Hospital as defined in (1) (a).

The two years' training in the Special Hospital must include the subjects of the Preliminary Examination. This examination must be taken from the Special Hospital.

Special Hospitals to which the above rule applies.

Fever, Gynæcological, Ophthalmic, Ear and Nose, Cancer, Incurable, Orthopædic, Tuberculosis, Urinary Diseases, Venereal Diseases, Nervous Diseases, Children's Diseases, and (provided that the applicant has had training in bedside nursing for not less than six months) Mental Diseases.

In exceptional cases, on the recommendation of the Education and Examination Committee, and after detailed consideration of each case, the Council may permit nurses to proceed from a Special to a General hospital forthwith after passing the Preliminary Examination, or under special conditions (after completing one year's training) and after remaining for the two ensuing years at the said General Hospital to return to the said Special Hospital for the completion of the fourth year of training, but that no such permission be granted unless the authorities of the Special Hospital satisfy the Council:—

(a) that the training of such nurses will be adequately continued; and

(b) that the nursing of their patients presents difficulties which form a claim for special consideration.

Such hospitals will be entitled "Affiliated Hospitals."

(2) For Training in Male Nursing.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Male Nurses and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than three years in a Complete Training School for Male Nurses;

or four years in an Affiliated Training School for Male Nurses;

or three and a half years in an Associated Training School for Male Nurses.

(3) For Training in Mental Nursing, and for Nurses for Mental Defectives.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Mental Nurses, and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than three years, including not less than six months bedside nursing as detailed in Section IV, Part I, of the Syllabus of Subjects for Examination, before the candidate enters for the Preliminary Examination.

Note.—Those Institutions which cannot provide sufficient bedside nursing for their staff can do so by arrangement or by affiliation with a General Hospital, subject to the approval of the Council.

(4) For Training in Sick Children's Nursing.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Sick Children's Nurses, and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than three years.

There should be at least one Resident Medical Officer.

(5) For Training in Fever Nursing.

(a) As a Complete Training School.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Fever Nurses, and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than two years.

(b) As an Affiliated Training School.

The Council is prepared to consider a scheme by which a Fever Hospital which has not sufficient material to afford a complete training may affiliate itself to a Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

The period of training under this category must be not less than two years and six months, of which not less than one year must be spent at the Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

The Preliminary Examination must be passed before the nurse enters the Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

Notes.—(1) The General Nursing Council considers that it would be greatly in the interests of the training of nurses if preliminary training schools could be instituted in various centres through England and Wales.

(2) In every case the Institution where the training takes place must be "either an Institution approved by the Council in that behalf, or in the service of the Admiralty, the Army Council, or the Air Council." (Nurses' Registration Act 1919, 3(2) (b).)

SCHEMES UNDER WHICH NURSES MAY BE TRAINED FOR ADMISSION TO THE STATE REGISTER.

(1) For admission to the General Part of the Register.

Three years' training in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus in a Complete Training School approved by the Council;

or

Three and a half years' training in Associated Hospitals which together form a Training School approved by the Council;

or

Four years' training in Affiliated Hospitals which together form a Training School approved by the Council.

(2) For admission to the Supplementary Parts of the Register only.

Three years' training in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus in a Complete Training School approved by the Council;

or

Three and a half years' training in an Associated Training School for Male Nurses approved by the Council;

or

Four years' training in an Affiliated Training School for Male Nurses approved by the Council.

Three years' training in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus in a Complete Training School for Mental Nurses approved by the Council.

(c) Nurses for Mental Defectives.

Three years' training in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus in a Complete Training School for Nurses for Mental Defectives approved by the Council.

Three years' training in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus in a Complete Training School for Sick Children's Nurses approved by the Council.

Two years' training in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus in a Complete Training School for Fever Nurses approved by the Council;

or

Two and a half years' training in an Affiliated Training School for Fever Nurses approved by the Council.

(3) For admission of Nurses Registered on the General Part of the Register to a Supplementary Part of the Register; or vice versa.

Five years' training will be necessary. Either three years' training in an approved Complete Training School for Mental Nurses (or Nurses for Mental Defectives) including not less than six months' training in bedside nursing, and two years subsequently in an Approved Complete Training School for General Nurses;

or

Three years' training in a Complete Training School for General Nurses and two years subsequently in a Complete Training School for Mental Nurses or Nurses for Mental Defectives.

(b) General and Sick Children's Nurses.

Five years' training will be necessary. Either three years' training in an Approved Training School for Sick Children's Nurses and two years subsequently in an Approved Complete Training School for General Nurses;

or

Three years' training in a Complete Training School for General Nurses and two years subsequently in a Training School for Sick Children's Nurses.

(c) General and Fever Nurses.

Four years' training will be necessary. Either two years' training in an Approved Complete Training School for Fever Nurses, and two years subsequently in an Approved Complete Training School for General Nurses;

or

Three years' training in a Complete Training School for General Nurses, and one year subsequently in a Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

(4) For admission of Nurses Registered on a Supplementary Part of the Register to another Supplementary Part of the Register.

Four years' training will be necessary. Either two years' training in an Approved Complete Training School for Fever Nurses, and two years subsequently in an Approved Complete Training School for Mental Nurses, or for Sick Children's Nurses;

or

Three years' training in an Approved Complete Training School for Mental Nurses or for Sick Children's Nurses, and one year subsequently in an Approved Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

Five years' training will be necessary. Either three years' training in an Approved Complete Training School for Sick Children's Nurses, and two years subsequently in an Approved Complete Training School for Mental Nurses or for Nurses for Mental Defectives;

or

Three years' training in an Approved Complete Training School for Mental Nurses, or for Nurses for Mental Defectives, and two years subsequently in an Approved Training School for Sick Children's Nurses.

(c) Male and Mental Nurses, or Male Nurses and Nurses for Mental Defectives.

Five years' training will be necessary. Either three years' training in an Approved Complete Training School for Male Nurses, and two years subsequently in an Approved Complete Training School for Mental Nurses, or for Nurses for Mental Defectives;

or

Three years' training in an Approved Complete Training School for Mental Nurses, or for Nurses for Mental Defectives, and two years subsequently in an Approved Complete Training School for Male Nurses.

Five years' training will be necessary. Either three years' training in an Approved Complete Training School for Mental Nurses, and two years subsequently in an Approved Complete Training School for Nurses for Mental Defectives;

or

Three years' training in an Approved Complete Training School for Nurses for Mental Defectives, and two years subsequently in an Approved Training School for Mental Nurses.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE BRITISH X-RAY AND RADIUM PROTECTION COMMITTEE.

FOURTH REVISED REPORT (JUNE 1934).

With the object of arresting the sequence of casualties to X-ray and radium workers, the British X-ray and Radium Protection Committee was formed in 1921, as the result of co-operative action between the Royal Society of Medicine, the Röntgen Society, the British Association for the Advancement of Radiology and Physiotherapy (now the British Institute of Radiology incorporated with the Röntgen Society), the Institute of Physics, the Radium Institute, London, and the National Physical Laboratory. The personnel of the Committee was afterwards widened to include representatives from the provincial schools.

The Committee issued its first recommendations in July 1921. Successive revised reports followed in December 1923 and May 1927. At the instance of the British Committee, International Recommendations for X-ray and Radium Protection were adopted at Stockholm in 1928 by the Second International Congress of Radiology. These were largely based on the British proposals.

The problem of adequate protection for the X-ray worker has been substantially eased by the introduction of the self-protected tube and more recently by the "shock-proof" tube and equipment. Account is taken of this in the present (Fourth) Report of the British Committee, which follows in the main the form of the International Recommendations, and contains a number of alterations and additions based on the experience of the Committee and of the National Physical Laboratory in its inspection and testing work carried out in association with the Committee.

Copies of the Report may be had on application to the Hon. Secretaries of the Protection Committee at 32, Welbeck Street, W.1, or the Director, The National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, Middlesex.

PROTECTIVE MEASURES.

The protective measures recommended are dealt with under the following sections :—

I. Introduction.
II. Working Hours and other Conditions.
III. General X-ray and Radium Recommendations.
IV. X-ray Protective Recommendations.
V. Electrical Precautions in X-ray Rooms.
VI. Film Storage Recommendations.
VII. X-rays for Industrial and Research Purposes.
VIII. Radium Protective Recommendations.
IX. Electrical Precautions with Electromedical Apparatus.
X. Ultra-violet Therapy.
XI. General.

I. INTRODUCTION.

1. The dangers of over-exposure to X-rays and radium can be avoided by the provision of adequate protection and suitable working conditions. It is the duty of those in charge of X-ray and radium departments to ensure such conditions for their personnel. The known effects to be guarded against are :—

(a) Injuries to the superficial tissues;
(b) Derangements of internal organs and changes in the blood.

2. The evidence at present available appears to suggest that under satisfactory working conditions a person in normal health can tolerate exposure to X-rays to an extent of about 0·2 international röntgens (r.) per day. On the basis of continuous irradiation during a working day of seven hours this figure corresponds to a dosage rate of 10^{-5} r. per second. The protective values given in these recommendations are generally in harmony with this figure under average conditions. No similar tolerance dose is at present available in the case of radium gamma rays.

II. WORKING HOURS AND OTHER CONDITIONS.

3. The following working hours, etc., are recommended for whole-time X-ray and radium workers :—

(a) Not more than seven working hours a day. Whole-time X-ray and radium workers should not be called upon for other hospital service.
(b) Not more than five working days a week. The off-days to be spent as much as possible out of doors.

(c) Not less than four weeks holiday a year, preferably consecutively.

(d) No person should be employed as an X-ray or radium worker whose blood (as tested by a complete investigation of the blood), or general health, is unsatisfactory.

Before beginning work or training, the normal leucocyte level should be found by making three total and differential blood-counts in the afternoon. (The counts may be made on different afternoons, or on the same afternoon at half-hourly intervals.) If none of the total counts reach 6,000 per c.mm. and none of the lymphocyte counts reach 1,200 per c.mm. the applicant should not be accepted for service.

Periodical total and differential blood-counts of the worker should be made during the afternoon period, every six months in the case of the X-ray worker, and every three months in the case of the radium worker. The six-month period may be considerably extended in the case of X-ray workers in departments which otherwise comply with the Recommendations of the Protection Committee.

If at any time there is found to be a decided and sustained drop in either the total leucocyte or the total lymphocyte count the worker should cease work and be placed under treatment for an adequate period. On resumption of work every care should be taken and the circumstances of the work should be reviewed so as to prevent a recurrence.

III. GENERAL X-RAY AND RADIUM RECOMMENDATIONS.

4. X-ray and radium departments should not be situated below ground-floor level. Damp rooms should be avoided.

5. All rooms, including photographic dark rooms, should be provided with windows, affording good natural lighting and ready facilities for admitting sunshine and fresh air whenever possible.

6. All rooms, including photographic dark rooms, should be provided with adequate exhaust ventilation capable of renewing the air of the room not less than ten times an hour. Low-level air inlets and high-level outlets should be arranged to afford cross-wise ventilation of the room.

7. All rooms should preferably be decorated in light colours.

8. A working temperature of about 18° to 21° C. (65° to 70° F.) is desirable in X-ray rooms.

9. X-ray rooms should be large enough to permit a convenient lay-out of the equipment. A minimum floor area of 250 sq. ft. (25 sq. m.) is recommended for X-ray rooms, and 100 sq. ft. (10 sq. m.) for dark rooms. Ceilings should be not less than 11 ft. (3·5 m.) high.

10. X-ray generating apparatus employing mechanical rectifiers should preferably be placed in a separate room from the X-ray tube.

IV. X-RAY PROTECTIVE RECOMMENDATIONS.

11. An X-ray operator should on no account expose himself to a direct beam of X-rays.

12. An operator should place himself as far as practicable from the X-ray tube. It should be borne in mind that if valve tubes are used improperly they may produce X-rays.

13. The X-ray tube should be self-protected, or otherwise surrounded as completely as possible with protective material of adequate lead equivalent.*

14. The following lead equivalents are recommended under average conditions :—

X-rays generated by peak voltages.	Minimum equivalent thickness of lead.
Not exceeding kv.	mm.
100	1·5
150	2·5
200	4
300	9
350	12
400	15

15. In the case of diagnostic work with other than completely protected tubes, the operator should be afforded protection from stray radiation by a screen of a minimum lead equivalent of 1 mm.

16. Screening examinations should be conducted as rapidly as possible with minimum intensities and apertures. The material of the

* It should be pointed out that the protective lead values of certain materials are much affected by a change in the exciting voltage of the X-ray tube. This applies particularly to materials in which elements lighter than lead furnish the chief protection. In the case of protective slabs or plasters made up of mixtures of materials, the difficulty of securing uniform mixing should be met by a generous margin of safety in estimating the required thickness. As a rough working rule, solid brick and concrete are equivalent to about 1 per cent. of the same thickness of lead.

diaphragm should be equivalent to not less than 2 mm. of lead. The diaphragm should be of the rectangular type and the design should be such as to permit it to be completely closed. To prevent the lateral escape of direct radiation, the diaphragm should be fitted within a protective enclosure. Palpation with the hand should be reduced to the minimum.

17. The lead glass of fluorescent screens should have the protective values recommended in paragraph 14.

18. In the case of screening stands, the fluorescent screen should, if necessary on account of the small size of the screen, be provided with a protective "surround" so that adequate protection against direct radiation is afforded for all positions of the screen and diaphragm.

19. Screening couches and stands should provide adequate arrangements for protecting the operator against scattered radiation from the patient. In the case of a couch, this can take the form of a protective screen, mounted on the carriage and of material equivalent to not less than $\frac{1}{2}$ mm. of lead. The screen should have a width of not less than 2 ft., and should project 9 or 10 in. above the couch. In the case of a screening stand, an "apron" of protective material not less than 2 ft. wide and of not less than $\frac{1}{2}$ mm. lead equivalent should be attached to the lower edge of the screen.

20. Protective gloves, which should be suitably lined with fabric or other material, should have a protective value not less than $\frac{1}{3}$ mm. lead throughout both back and front (including fingers and wrist). Protective aprons should have a minimum lead value of $\frac{1}{2}$ mm.

The use of some form of calibrated ionisation dose-meter during treatment is strongly recommended.

21. In the case of X-ray treatment, the operator should be stationed outside the X-ray room behind a protective wall, the lead equivalent of which will depend on the circumstances. In the case of a single X-ray tube excited by voltages up to about 200 kv., the protective wall should have a lead equivalent of not less than 2 mm. For higher exciting voltages or more than one X-ray tube, or for heavy tube-currents, the wall protection should be proportionately increased. The wall protection should also be increased if the protective value of the X-ray tube enclosure falls short of the values given in paragraph 14. In such event the remaining walls, floor and ceiling may also be required to provide supplementary protection for adjacent occupants to an extent depending on the circumstances.

22. Inspection windows in screens and walls should have protective lead values equivalent to that of the surrounding screen or wall.

23. In those cases in which an X-ray tube is continuously excited and treatment periods are regulated by means of a shutter, some form of remote control should be provided for the shutter to ensure that the operator is not exposed to direct radiation while manipulating the shutter or filter.

Efficient safeguards should be adopted to avoid the omission of a metal filter in X-ray treatment.

V. ELECTRICAL PRECAUTIONS IN X-RAY ROOMS.

Attention should be drawn to the fact that with the more powerful X-ray plants in use to-day the possibilities of fatalities are increased.

24. The floor-covering of the X-ray room should be of insulating material such as wood, rubber, or linoleum. Rubber-soled shoes form a useful supplementary precaution.

25. Where permanent overhead conductors are employed they should be not less than 9 ft. (3 m.) from the floor. They should consist of stout metal tubing or other coronaless type of conductor. The associated connecting leads should be of coronaless wire kept taut by suitable rheophores.

26. Wherever possible earthed guards or earthed sheaths should be provided to shield the more adjacent parts of the high-tension system. Unshielded leads to the X-ray tube should be in positions as remote as possible from the operator and the patient. The use of "shock-proof" X-ray equipment in which the high-tension circuit is completely enclosed in earthed conductors is specially recommended. In all cases, however, indiscriminate handling of X-ray tubes during operation should be forbidden. Unless there are reasons to the contrary, metal parts of the apparatus and room should be efficiently earthed.

27. Main and supply switches should be very accessible and distinctly indicated. They should not be in the proximity of the high-tension system, nor should it be possible for them to close accidentally. The use of quick-acting, double-pole circuit breakers is recommended. Over-powered fuses should not be used. If more than one apparatus is operated from a common generator, suitable high-tension multi-way switches should be provided. In the case of some of the constant-potential generators, a residual charge is held by the condensers after shutting down. A suitable discharging device should therefore be fitted. Illuminated warning devices which operate when the equipment is " alive " serve a useful purpose. Printed first-aid instructions dealing with electrical shock are available * and the staff should be trained in their use.

28. Some suitable form of kilovoltmeter should be provided to afford a measure of the voltage operating the X-ray tube. Whenever possible a safety spark-gap should be provided.

29. Low flash-point anæsthetics should never be used in conjunction with X-rays.

VI. FILM STORAGE PRECAUTIONS.

30. The use of non-inflammable X-ray films is strongly recommended. In the case of inflammable films, the following precautions should be taken as regards their use and storage.

31. X-ray Rooms.

(a) In all rooms where X-ray films are handled and stored naked lights and open fires should be prohibited. Smoking should be prohibited in or near film cabinets or film stores. Films should not be placed near steam pipes, radiators, or the like. A ready supply of fire extinguishers, together with buckets of water and sand should be available. The best means of extinguishing burning celluloid appears to be by the application of water.

(b) Electric light installations should be of a permanent character. Electric light bulbs in or near film stores or cabinets should be enclosed in strong glass globes.

(c) Generous ventilation should be provided in X-ray rooms. As recommended in paragraph 6, the plan of an independent exhaust fan in each room is to be preferred to a duct system common to a number of rooms. Doors should be arranged to open outwards, particularly from film-drying rooms and dark rooms.

(d) The stock of X-ray films, whether unexposed or developed, should be kept down to the minimum. The stock of film records should be subjected to periodical drastic weeding out. Discarded films should be at once deposited in strong fire-proof metal containers with self-closing lids, and destroyed at frequent intervals. They should not be placed in general refuse bins, or burnt in a closed vessel.

* See, for example, those published by the Electrical Review.

(e) Stocks of unexposed films for immediate use or current files of developed films should be stored in cool and dry lock-up thermally insulated metal or hard-wood cabinets. Such a stock should not exceed a total of about 50 lb. (i.e. about 1,000 12 by 10 in. films) distributed among several cabinets. Cabinets for unexposed films should be lead lined.

(f) Developed films which are temporarily taken into Hospital Wards or Theatres for the convenience of the Medical Staff, should not be left lying about in table drawers or cupboards, but should be kept in suitable metal containers. Such films should be returned to the X-ray department as soon as possible.

32. Film Stores.

Stocks of film exceeding about 50 lb. should not be stored in the X-ray department, but in a special dry, cool, and well-ventilated room reserved exclusively for the purpose. The main requirements of such a room are as follows :—

(a) The situation of the film store should not be such as to endanger the means of escape from any part of a building. The store should not be in the proximity of a lift-shaft or staircase-well, or near an intake or outlet of a general duct-ventilating system. In no circumstances should the store communicate with a general duct-ventilating system.

The store should preferably be an isolated single-storey building with independent access. Failing that, the store may be placed on the roof of a building, or if that is not feasible, in one of the higher stories in as isolated a position as possible.

(b) The walls, floor and ceiling of the store-room should be fireproof and of robust construction. The doors should be fireproof and of a self-closing, closely-fitting type opening outwards. If the store-room forms part of a main building, a useful further precaution is a fireproof vestibule with a second fireproof door.

(c) The store should be provided with a direct vent to the outer air, preferably on the side remote from the most adjacent building. Such a vent should not normaly be less than a square foot in effective area, a figure which may require to be exceeded for large stores. The vent may be protected against weather, etc., by thin unwired glass or other equally frail device.

(d) The store may well be equipped with steel cabinets. If the store is designed to carry unusually large stocks of films (exceeding, say, 1 ton), it should be divided into completely isolated fireproof compartments each with its own vent and fireproof door.

(e) The temperature of the store should be maintained at a moderate figure. If the roof is exposed to the sun, suitable thermal lagging may be necessary in hot climates. It seems certain that good quality celluloid does not ignite spontaneously at any temperature attained under ordinary room conditions.

(f) The store should be equipped with an automatic water sprinkler device.

(g) If windows are provided in a film store, they are best situated in a north wall, though other considerations may be more important. Any windows immediately above the windows or vent of the store-room should be provided with wired glass.

VII. X-RAYS FOR INDUSTRIAL AND RESEARCH PURPOSES.

33. The preceding recommendations will probably apply to the majority of conditions under which X-rays are used for industrial and research purposes. Should screening be carried out continuously over long periods the protection afforded should be greater than that specified for hospital practice. In any case the protective arrangements and working hours should be such that the radiation received by the operator does not exceed 0·2 r. per day.

VIII. RADIUM PROTECTIVE RECOMMENDATIONS.*

(A) Radium Salts.

Protection for radium workers is required from the effects of :—

(a) Beta rays upon the hands;

34. In order to protect the hands from beta rays, reliance should be placed, in the first place, on distance. The radium should be manipulated with long-handled forceps, and should be carried from place to place in long-handled boxes, lined on all sides with at least 1 cm. of lead. All manipulations should be carried out as rapidly as possible.

35. Radium, when not in use, should be stored in a safe as distant as possible from the personnel. It is recommended that the safe should be provided with a number of separate drawers individually protected. The amount of protection should correspond to the values given in the following table. These values, which are based on working conditions where there is proximity to radium, may be reduced for larger working distances.

Maximum quantity of radium element.	Thickness of lead.
gm.	cm.
0·2	8·5
0·5	10
1·0	11·5
2·0	13
5·0	15
10·0	17

36. A separate room should be provided for the " make-up " of screened tubes and applicators, and this room should only be occupied during such work. The room should be provided with an exhaust fan the control switch for which should be outside the room.

37. In order to protect the body from the penetrating gamma rays during handling of the radium, a screen of not less than 2·5 cm. of lead should be used, and proximity to the radium should only occur during actual work and for as short a time as possible.

38. The measurement room should be a separate room, and it should preferably contain the radium only during its actual measurement.

39. Nurses and attendants should not remain in close proximity to patients undergoing radium treatment with quantities exceeding $\frac{1}{2}$ gm.

40. All unskilled work or work which can be learnt in a short period of time should preferably be carried out by temporary workers, who should be engaged on such work for periods not exceeding six months. This applies especially to nurses and those engaged in " making-up " applicators.

41. Discretion should be exercised in transmitting radium salts by post. In the case of small quantities it is recommended that the container should be lined throughout with lead not less than 3 mm. thick. It is more satisfactory to transport large quantities by hand in a suitably designed carrying case.

(B) Radon (Radium Emanation).

42. In the manipulation of radon, protection against the beta and gamma rays has likewise to be provided.

43. The handling of radon should be carried out, as far as possible, during its relatively inactive state.

44. The escape of radon should be very carefully guarded against and the room in which it is prepared should be provided with an exhaust fan the control switch for which should be outside the room.

* See also the National Radium Commission's publication on " The Care and Custody of Radium," p. 289.

45. Where radon is likely to come in direct contact with the fingers, thin rubber gloves should be worn to avoid contamination of the hands with active deposit. Otherwise the protective measures recommended for radium salts should be carried out.

46. The pumping room should preferably be contained in a separate building. The room should be provided with a connecting tube from the special room in which the radium is stored in solution. The radium in solution should be heavily screened to protect people working in adjacent rooms. This is preferably done by placing the radium in solution in a lead-lined enclosure, the thickness of lead recommended being according to the table above.

IX. ELECTRICAL PRECAUTIONS WITH ELECTRO-MEDICAL APPARATUS.*

The advisability of periodic inspection of electro-medical apparatus is strongly recommended.

47. With the exception of diathermy, electro-medical treatment is carried out with apparatus using current either at ordinary mains voltages (100–250 volts, e.g. sources of ultra-violet light, radiant heat baths and thermal pads), or at somewhat lower voltages (10–75 volts, e.g. equipment for galvanic, faradic and sinusoidal currents, etc.). In the case of diathermy apparatus (whether medical or surgical) current at ordinary voltages and frequencies is converted into current at high voltages and very high frequencies. The electrical precautions to be observed depend to some extent on the type of apparatus.

48. Apparatus operated at mains voltages should be shielded as far as may be necessary by earthed metal guards. As regards lower-voltage apparatus the current may be derived from the mains through the intermediary of either : (a) step-down double-wound transformers or motor-generator sets, or (b) potentiometers or rheostats. (a) Has the important advantage of giving electrical isolation. If (b) is used, care should be taken that the patient is connected at the earthed or neutral end of the system, and that connecting plugs are of a type which ensures that the polarity cannot be reversed.

* See also the Ministry of Health's publication (Memo. 161 Med.) on " Precautions against Shock from Electro-medical Apparatus," p. 292.

49. Diathermy apparatus should preferably be of the type in which the output circuit is electrically isolated from the intermediate low-frequency circuit, and in all cases the low frequency side of the apparatus should be enclosed either in an earthed metal enclosure or in one offering good electrical insulation. Spark gaps should be enclosed and adjustment should be effected by insulated handles or the like.

50. Unless there are reasons to the contrary it is in general advisable to restrict earthing to the electro-medical apparatus and to use an insulated support for the patient. A convenient method of earthing is by the use of three-strand cable and three-contact plugs, in which one contact is earthed. Floors should be of an insulating character, and in carrying out treatment in wards with iron bedsteads, care should be taken that the bed does not make contact with heating pipes or the like. Flexible connections used to connect electro-medical apparatus to supply mains should be of the type having thick rubber insulation. Braided " flex " should be avoided.

51. A suitable system of power plugs should be adopted to ensure that apparatus cannot be connected to the wrong supply. Plugs of different sizes, properly labelled and bearing distinguishing colours, should be used for the various supplies, e.g. mains voltage A.C., mains voltage D.C., low voltage A.C., low voltage D.C.

X. ULTRA-VIOLET THERAPY.

52. Almost without exception, the sources of ultra-violet rays are fed from the mains. The apparatus should as far as possible be connected permanently to the mains, but if wall plugs are employed they should be combined with quick release enclosed switches. Tests of polarity of a main circuit should not be entrusted to the nursing staff and, in no circumstances, should they be encouraged to handle open wires leading from the main circuit. All such matters including the coupling up to the lamps, should be done by someone with technical knowledge.

53. Open and closed arcs yielding ultra-violet radiation are dangerous to look at with the naked eye; goggles of proved opacity to ultra-violet rays should be used both by patients and by operators. The opacity can only be proved satisfactorily by a spectroscopic test. Goggles which transmit radiation shorter than 3,800 A.U. should not be used. The nursing staff should be warned of the pigmentation produced by repeated or prolonged exposures to ultra-violet radiation.

Thin muslin worn over the face will prevent pigmentation.

54. Practically the only closed arc used is mercury in a quartz tube. The tube gets hot in action and sometimes cracks with the expulsion of hot mercury. It is recommended that these lamps should not be used for overhead work without some device for catching spilt mercury.

55. The open arcs most used are carbon, carbon-cored and tungsten. There is some danger to patients from small white-hot fragments spurted off open arcs on starting.

56. Ventilation is of great importance because all arcs produce deleterious gases; the open arcs also consume oxygen. The air of rooms devoted to such work should therefore be frequently changed yet adequately warmed, for patients exposed to the rays often have little clothing on. Exhaust fans communicating with an outer wall or chimney shaft are recommended for the purpose.

57. Though the dangers of errors in dosage are not so great as with X-rays or radium, every effort should be made to get some measurement of the rays being administered. There is as yet no agreed unit of ultra-violet energy or standard method of measuring doses of these rays. The use of some simple indicator (photo-chemical or photo-electrical) is recommended as a check on the constancy of emission of the source. It is known that the yield of arc lamps increases proportionately with the power supplied to them, so that the volts and amperes in the circuit should be measured as a first check on the yield of radiation. The quartz in mercury vapour lamps gradually becomes more opaque to ultra-violet radiation, and so it becomes more necessary here to supplement the power observations by some device which will measure the radiation actually emitted by the lamp. Further precautions in the use of mercury lamps are necessary because, after these lamps are started, their output gradually decreases, but then increases to a steady value which may take ten to fifteen minutes to attain. Therapeutic work should, therefore, not be begun until this steady state is reached.

XI. GENERAL.

58. The governing bodies of many institutions where radiological and electro-medical work is carried on may wish to have further guarantees of the general safety of the conditions under which their personnel work. Although the committee believe that an adequate degree of safety would result if the recommendations now put forward were acted upon, they would point out that this is entirely dependent upon the loyal co-operation of the personnel in following the precautionary measures outlined for their benefit.

59. The Protection Committee further draw attention to the facilities which are provided by the National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, for the inspection of X-ray, radium, electro-medical and ultra-violet light departments, the testing of protective materials and equipment, the calibration of dose-meters and the testing of radium and radioactive substances. In particular, when new departments are being planned, the Committee suggest that it will normally be found specially advantageous to call on the services of the Laboratory prior to or at an early stage in the erection of the department. The Reports of the Laboratory are based on the Recommendations of the Committee, with which it works in close co-operation.

60. The Protection Committee will welcome at any time suggestions or information which would tend to improve the scheme of protection outlined in their Recommendations.

THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM.*

In organising a Hospital Radium service, rules and regulations are necessary to ensure :—

(1) The efficient therapeutic and economic use of Radium.

(2) The protection of Radium workers.

(3) The safe custody of Radium.

The safe custody of Radium, in use and not in use, can only be assured if certain essentials in the general equipment are provided; the economic use of Radium can only be obtained if a system is adopted which records the milligramme hours of treatment for which each container has been used; and for the protection of Radium workers suitable equipment must be provided and definite rules and regulations rigorously enforced. In this connection great importance should be attached to the employment of intelligent and instructed lay personnel. The formulation of the following suggestions for Rules and Regulations are to a large extent based on those in force in London Hospitals, more particularly St. Bartholomew's Hospital, The Middlesex Hospital, and The Cancer Hospital.

It should, however, be recognised that these may not be applicable to all Radium centres and that modification may be necessary to meet local circumstances.

An indicator system such as the one outlined ensures a double check on the issue of all Radium containers. It is also a method of quickly ascertaining the amount of Radium and its distribution in the safe, thus avoiding unnecessary exposure of the Radium worker. In addition, the amount of Radium and its distribution throughout the hospital is clearly shown.

1. General Equipment.
2. General Rules for the Care and Custody of Radium.
3. Rules for the Care and Custody of Radium in Wards and Operating Theatres.
4. Indicator System.
5. Case Records, Forms and Books to be Kept.
6. Health and Protection of Workers.
7. Procedure Concerning the Issuing and Return of Radium. (Where an Indicator System is in use.)

GENERAL EQUIPMENT.

Radium Safe.

The Radium Safe should be constructed so that the Radium Assistant is never exposed to the full radiation of the whole stock of Radium, whilst removing Radium Containers from the safe.

The St. Bartholomew's Hospital pattern makes provision for this by means of a series of drawers in lead blocks. The safe should give a minimum filtration of 6 inches of lead in every direction. There are obvious advantages in placing such a lead safe in a fire-proof room, with a fire-proof door, but if such is not available the lead safe can be built into an ordinary fire-proof safe. This meets the requirements of the Insurance Companies.

Ward Lockers.

Ward Lockers are necessary in all units in which Radium is to be used so that Radium issued to a Department and not in use can be safely stored in these lockers.

The key should be in charge of the Ward Sister.

Radium Carriers.

There are various forms of Radium Carriers. These should give a minimum filtration of 1 cm. of lead and should be designed so that they are carried by long handles. The carrier when taken to the Ward should be placed in the Radium Locker.

Radium Bench.

In order to ensure adequate protection to Radium workers all Radium manipulations should be carried out on a properly constructed lead-lined bench. The type illustrated is used in the Radium Belge Laboratories in Brussels and gives adequate protection and facilities for easy manipulation of Radium Containers.

The surface of the table is covered with plate glass and there is a rack for instruments.

Accessory Apparatus.

A simple microscope of the Barts † or Kaye ‡ pattern for examining and identifying Radium Containers is necessary as are also various types of forceps and wooden needle holders.

GENERAL RULES FOR THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM.

1. The Radium shall be in the care and custody of the Radium Custodian, who may be Radiologist/Physicist/Radium Officer to the Hospital.

‡ Kaye and Higgins, Brit. Journ. Radiology, 1929.

* Reprinted from the Third Annual Report of the Radium Commission.

2. When not in use it shall be kept in the Main Safe.

3. The key to the Main Safe shall be in charge of the Custodian. A duplicate key shall be in charge of the Secretary to the Hospital.

4. Radium shall only be issued on the instructions of the Custodian and to approved persons.

5. Radium shall not be left in any Department until a signed receipt for it has been obtained from the Sister-in-Charge or her deputy.

6. Radium Containers requisitioned but not required for treatment or those removed from a patient in any Department shall be placed in the Ward Locker and immediate notice given to the Radium Department.

RULES FOR THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM IN WARDS AND OPERATING THEATRES.

1. No mercurial solution or iodine to be placed in contact with Radium Containers.

No plasters containing metallic salts to be used on sites to which Radium is being applied or to which it will be applied.

Radium Containers to be sterilised by boiling in plain water (without soda).

2. In the interests of the Nursing Staff, no Sister or Nurse shall be allowed to manipulate Radium over a period of more than three consecutive months. After this period at least two years shall elapse before she shall again be allowed to manipulate Radium.

3. The Radium Containers should not be held in the fingers but only with special forceps. Rubber gloves should be worn whenever practicable.

Radium Containers should only be inserted by means of special forceps or introducers. They must not be held by pressure forceps of the ordinary type.

4. Dressings from a patient carrying Radium must be carefully inspected before being destroyed.

In lesions of the alimentary tract and on special instructions all discharges and excreta should be carefully examined before being thrown away.

5. Radium Containers, on removal from the patient, must be at once placed in the Radium Carrier which, in turn, must be placed in the Ward Locker, and the Ward Sister or her deputy notify the Radium Department. Radium Applicators used intermittently during any given treatment must be kept in the Ward Locker when not in use.

In the case of a Radium Container becoming displaced the responsible surgeon must be informed at once.

In the event of loss of Radium the Custodian must be informed immediately.

6. Patients under treatment with Radium liable to displacement shall not be allowed to leave their beds except for transfer to the Operating Theatre or X-ray Department, and then only when in charge of a nurse.

7. A card with the word RADIUM in large red letters should be attached to the bed of all patients with Radium in or applied to them.

8. Patients shall not be permitted to leave the Hospital with Radium attached.

9. In case a Radium Container is missing :—

(c) Do not sweep floors or disturb furniture, sinks, sluices, etc.

(d) If an X-ray examination is necessary, see that all the patient's clothing is changed before leaving the Ward. Preserve the clothing carefully.

(e) No dressings or laundry must leave the Ward, nor dustbins be emptied until further instructions are received.

(f) Steps should immediately be taken to damp down hospital incinerator fires, and search should be made in the suspected neighbourhood with a sensitive electroscope.

INDICATOR SYSTEM.

Where a large number of Radium Containers are in use it is possible by means of a check system to indicate :—

1. The amount of Radium and its distribution in the safe.

2. The amount of Radium and its distribution throughout the Hospital.

For this Indicator Boards and discs are necessary :—

1. Indicator Board No. 1 in Radium Office.
2. Distribution Board in Radium Office.
3. Indicator Board No. 2 adjoining safe.

(Where the safe is situated at some distance from the Radium Office, two Indicator Boards are required.)

Indicator Boards.

These Boards are divided into squares.

Each square represents a drawer in the safe and is furnished with pegs.

The coloured discs representing the Radium Containers in the various safe drawers, are placed on the pegs in the corresponding squares. One colour is used for Indicator Board No. 1 and another colour for Indicator Board No. 2.

Distribution Board.

The Distribution Board in the Radium Office is divided into squares representing each unit in the Hospital in which Radium may be used. It is also furnished with pegs.

Discs.

Each Radium Container bears its own registration number and markings, and is represented by two discs of different colours, bearing identical markings. Those on Indicator Board No. 1 in the Radium Office are white and those on Indicator Board No. 2 adjoining the safe are red.

CASE RECORDS, FORMS AND BOOKS TO BE KEPT.

1. National Radium Commission forms.
   (Supplies can be obtained from :—
   Messrs. Charles Skipper & East,
   49, Great Tower Street,
   London, E.C.3.)
2. International Gynæcological Forms.
   (Supplies can be obtained from :—
   Lt.-Col. A. B. Smallman,
   Ministry of Health,
   Whitehall, S.W.1.)
3. Request forms.
4. Acknowledgment forms.
5. Receipt Book.
6. Radium Container Record Card.
7. Stock Book.

HEALTH AND PROTECTION OF WORKERS.

The recommendations of the British Protection Committee should be adopted (a copy of these may be obtained from the Director, National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, Middlesex).

PROCEDURE CONCERNING THE ISSUING AND RETURN OF RADIUM

(Where an Indicator System is in use.)

1. The request for Radium Containers to be made on the printed form and signed by a senior member of the staff. One week's notice, if possible, to be given.
2. Acknowledgment of the request and statement as to date and time at which Radium can be obtained to be made on the form printed for the purpose.
3. Receipt Book to be filled up.
4. Indicator Discs corresponding to the Radium Containers, etc., requisitioned, to be taken from Indicator Board No. 1 and handed to a Radium Assistant, along with the key of the Main Safe. These discs are exchanged for red discs on Indicator Board No. 2 adjoining safe. The corresponding Radium Containers are then removed from the safe and, after checking, are brought to the Radium Office along with red discs which are placed on the Distribution Board.
5. After a second examination, the Radium Containers are placed in the carriers and sent to Wards or Operating Theatres along with the receipt book, which is signed by the Sister-in-Charge or her deputy.
6. The Radium Containers, etc., received to be placed in the Ward Locker by the Sister-in-Charge or her deputy until actually required.
7. Radium Containers not used to be collected in the afternoon, marked off in the receipt book and returned to the Main Safe. Indicator and Distribution Boards to be adjusted.
8. When treatment is completed the Radium Containers to be collected and :—
   (a) Signed for in the Radium Receipt Book.
   (b) Cleaned and sterilised by the department in which they have been used.
   (c) Examined and a note made of any damage.
   (d) Entries to be made in Radium Container Record Book.
   (e) Indicator Boards to be adjusted.
   (f) Returned to Main Safe.
9. All damaged Radium Containers to be withdrawn from service and tested.
10. All damaged Radium Containers, on loan from the National Radium Commission, to be returned to the National Physical Laboratory, without undue delay.

Revised July, 1932.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST SHOCK FROM ELECTRO-MEDICAL APPARATUS.

(Memo. 161 Med. issued by the Ministry of Health.)

THE number of serious accidents from the use of electro-medical apparatus has so far been extremely small, but two factors seem likely to increase the risk of such accidents in the future. First, the ever-growing number of new medical appliances introduced each year, in which current from the main electric supply is utilised; and, secondly, the tendency for hospitals and institutions generally to change from their own direct current supplies of comparatively low voltage to the standard alternating current of 230 volts. Industrial experience * shows that as regards the risk of serious shock, alternating currents are far more dangerous than direct currents.

Careful attention to the following points should go far to minimise the risk of accident :—

1. Old apparatus.—Old and improperly insulated apparatus is in itself a grave source of danger.

2. The electrical treatment of patients in bed.—It is essential that the iron bedstead † should by no possibility be in such a position as to act as a means of "earthing" the patient, that is, it should not be in contact with any earthed metal, e.g., heating or water pipes, radiators, or even an "earthed" wireless receiver. The increasing use of radiant heat baths, resuscitation cradles, thermal pads for eye and ear work, and similar appliances receiving current in direct connection with the main current supply, necessitates increased precaution lest the patient be accidentally "earthed"; patients undergoing treatment should be out of range of accidental contact with "earthed" metal, such as radiators.

Where apparatus of non-earth-free type (i.e., not insulated from mains) is in use, it is undesirable that patients undergoing treatment simultaneously in the same room or ward should be within reach of each other.

It is important to secure that treatment rooms are not so crowded with apparatus that these precautions are impossible.

3. Earthing.—Under conditions which probably obtain in many wards, it may well be that electrical safety is best secured by insulating electrical apparatus instead of adopting the alternative method of earthing it. Thus, in wards where the floor is of wood and there is little likelihood of contact with earthed metal, preference should be given to the use of reading lamps constructed of wood rather than of metal.

In other situations, however, where there are conducting floors or earthed metal, the metal work of electrical apparatus should be earthed, and care taken to ensure the efficiency and maintenance of the earth connections.

In bath rooms or wash rooms the use of any portable apparatus, or apparatus fixed within reach from the bath or basin, should be avoided.

4. Electric pads.—The source of supply for heat treatment by electro-thermal compresses should always be at low voltage. If direct current mains supply is used, a reduction in voltage may be effected by the provision of a motor generator, whilst with alternating current, double-wound transformers, if necessary of a type tapped for regulation, should be interpolated between the source of supply and the patient.

5. Wireless headphones.—In cases where patients wearing headphones may be undergoing electrical treatment, or may handle electrical apparatus, it is desirable that consideration should be given to the insulation of the output circuit to which the headphones are connected, which can be easily effected by a double-wound isolating transformer. This recommendation also provides against the headphone circuits being alive at the pressure applied to the anode of the last amplifying valve of the wireless set.

6. Radiant heat baths.—These should be constructed as follows :—

(1) An internal mesh screen should be fitted to cover and protect the lamps and holders.
(2) The lampholders should be of insulating material, of heat-resisting character.
(3) Metal work should be earthed.

7. Projectors for light treatment.—These possess the common feature of exposure of live conductors within the reflectors, and there is similar exposure with the use of arc lamps. Whilst it is unlikely that live parts would be touched whilst such apparatus is in use, there is some risk to

* On industrial premises thirty fatalities due to shock from alternating currents at between 200 and 250 volts have occurred during the past five years, as compared with one due to direct currents of similar voltages.

† The necessity for these precautions (1 and 2) is illustrated by a recent fatality. A patient, in bed in a hospital ward, was receiving treatment to the leg from a radiant heat bath of the ordinary metal type. In this a metal frame carried metal lamp-holders on metal brackets, and moreover these were fixed in such a way that by long use or accident the fastenings of 7 out of 8 brackets had become loose, causing failure of insulation and rendering the metal case "live." No shock was felt, however, until the patient, sweating from the effect of the treatment, grasped the iron bedstead, which happened to be in contact with a hot-water pipe, and was electrocuted. The current was alternating 50 cycles and 230 volts.

the operator which could be minimised by the provision of mesh guards. In the case of projectors designed for use on industrial premises (bakeries) it has been found possible to incorporate such guards.

Earthing of the metal work of projectors is desirable.

8. Sets for generating electricity (as Galvanic, Faradic and Sinusoidal currents).—These are usually energised from the service mains, and for purposes of electrical safety may be considered to fall into two groups. In the first, a method of construction known as " earth free " is adopted, which, in effect, isolates the circuits with which the patient may be in contact from the main supply circuit. Electric shock at mains pressure would be possible only if a breakdown of insulation between the two systems occurred, and in good class apparatus the design is such that it would appear that there is no great risk of this occurring.

In the second group, however, electrical isolation from the mains supply is not effected. The earlier British-made sets, with some present-day Continental types, come within this category, and it is likely that this type of equipment is in use in a number of clinics. Potentiometer control is often incorporated, and a breakage of the resistance winding might result in the patient being exposed to mains pressure.

In many cases the mains supply to apparatus would be derived by means of a flexible cable and plug connector, and thus although initial care may have been taken that the plug is so inserted as to ensure that the circuit to the patient is at the neutral or earthed end of the potentiometer, a reversal of the plug or of the flexible conductor would mean that the application to the patient would be at mains pressure. If the patient should touch earthed metal under such conditions the consequences may be serious.

It is also desirable that all possible steps should be taken to guard against interruption of the current whilst the patient is under application. Whilst current up to considerable densities may flow without appreciable discomfort, provided efficient contacts are made, the consequences of sudden interruption such as might be caused by a fuse blowing, a bad contact in a plug fitting, or a breakage in a flexible connection would certainly lead to shock, under some conditions, of a severe character.

Other examples of apparatus within this class are cautery burners and cavity lamps connected to sources of main supply through resistance windings. In both cases the effect of open circuiting or of earthing the patient may be serious.

In general, it is considered that the use of sets of the second group, i.e., those which are not isolated electrically from the source of main supply, should be deprecated.

9. Apparatus for diathermy treatment.—These may also be divided into two groups. In the first the patient is subjected to a relatively low voltage high frequency current, and in the second to a minute current supplied at very high pressure and frequency. Whilst in both cases the necessary transformation effects isolation of the patient from the mains, there is an intermediate low frequency circuit operating at pressures ranging from 2,000 to 6,000 volts in which there may be sufficient electrical energy to cause severe electric shock. This intermediate circuit is, in some designs, isolated from the patient's circuit, but it would appear that such electrical separation is not invariably adopted. Where there is no isolation there would be an element of risk to the patient under certain rather remote conditions. In both cases it would be dangerous for the operator to attempt an adjustment or repair of the apparatus whilst live, and it is suggested that a preference should be evinced for designs in which :—

(1) The patient's circuit is electrically isolated from the intermediate (or spark gap) circuit;
(2) The spark gap is mounted inside the cabinet or enclosure containing the apparatus;
(3) The door of the cabinet or enclosure is so interlocked with the source of main supply as to ensure that the latter is disconnected when the door is opened.

10. Systematic inspection.—Regular and systematic inspection by competent experts should be made of all electro-medical apparatus to ensure the maintenance of efficient insulation, so that there is no breakdown through which the voltage of the main supply can reach the metallic body of the apparatus. Insulated wiring usually breaks down at connections (plugs and holders), and these should be specially protected (e.g., by properly fitted spiral springs, etc.). These connections should also be inspected with special care and frequency. Certain manufacturers have organised a maintenance service for electro-medical apparatus in clinics and hospitals.

It is specially advised that the above points should be borne in mind when the purchase of new apparatus is under consideration.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST ANÆSTHETIC EXPLOSIONS IN OPERATING THEATRES.

(Memo. 191 Med. issued by the Ministry of Health, reproduced by the kind permission of the Controller, His Majesty's Stationery Office.)

THE number of serious accidents due to anæsthetic explosions in operating theatres or rooms has, so far, been small, but two main factors seem likely to increase the risk of such accidents. The first is that administration of ether and oxygen mixtures is common, the second lies in the extensive and growing use of electrical apparatus close to the patient during anæsthesia. A study of conditions present at the time of certain accidents in this country known to the Ministry has shown the need for precautionary measures, and while the matter will be the subject of further inquiries it has been thought desirable to issue forthwith the following memorandum prepared in the Ministry, in consultation with the Factory Department of the Home Office, on points to which attention should in the meantime be given.

The Anæsthetic.

1. (a) Ether-air and ether-oxygen.—A rich ether-oxygen mixture is more dangerous than a corresponding ether-air mixture and a very small spark suffices to cause ignition.

(b) Nitrous oxide.—Although this gas is not itself inflammable, mixtures of ether vapour with air or oxygen are made not less, but even more, inflammable if nitrous oxide is added.

(c) Ethyl chloride.—This yields a vapour which forms an explosive mixture with air, and its use is dangerous in proximity to flames or apparatus likely to involve a spark or hot wires.

(d) A.C.E. mixture.—The ordinary A.C.E. mixture may yield an explosive mixture with air and present dangers if used under the conditions mentioned in (c) above.

Choice of Anæsthetic.

2. Methods of anæsthesia which are available when explosion risks may be anticipated are :—

Basal narcotics.
Local analgesia.
Nitrous oxide.
Chloroform.

These may be used in their usual combinations and with oxygen. Chloroform is, however, not always advisable and if local anæsthesia is impracticable the risk of ether may be minimised by limiting its administration to the induction of anæsthesia. After an interval sufficient to ensure that all ether vapour has been practically eliminated, the use of electrical apparatus is admissible, anæsthesia being maintained with chloroform or nitrous-oxide-oxygen.

Risk of ether explosion may in general be lessened by the employment of a rigid closed circuit method of administration with carbon di-oxide absorption. Under such conditions with a tightly fitting mask no anæsthetic should escape into the air.

Anæsthetic Apparatus.

3. In some types of apparatus it is possible for an explosive mixture containing ether to be delivered although the valve or tap is set to admit chloroform or nitrous oxide only. This is due to evaporation combined with the slight suction effect of the gas flow and its occurrence is more likely if the ether bottle is surrounded by a hot water jacket. In this type of apparatus, the casual emptying of the ether container is no safeguard but possibly an added danger. The ether bottle should be altogether detached and not replaced until all trace of ether has been removed, or it should be fitted with an effective valve which closes the outlet from the bottle when ether vapour is not required.

It has been established by experiment * that ether-oxygen mixtures can ignite along a tube such as that employed in intratracheal administration or in conjunction with a mask. If ignition occurs at the outlet, therefore, flame may reach the ether bottle causing a burst with ejection of burning ether.

Enclosed suction pumps should be so constructed that the exhaust delivery is outside the motor case; otherwise in nose and throat operations it is possible to suck in the air containing ether until concentration within the explosive limits is reached.

* Morgan, J. D., Proc. Royal Soc. Medicine, Vol. 25, Part I.

Electrical Apparatus.

4. (a) Surgical Diathermy.—Experience has shown that it is unwise to use diathermic apparatus if ether must be administered. The essential feature of this apparatus is the cutting arc or spark at the electrode which is definitely capable of igniting ether-air or ether-oxygen mixtures. The employment of a blanket or other form of screen between the patient's head and the point of application of the electrode is in no sense a reliable safeguard, and further risk of ignition arises from the spark gaps within the cabinet, and from the fact that the patient may be at an electrical potential, with consequent risk of sparking to the operator or other conducting bodies such as the table or anæsthetic apparatus.

(b) X-ray Apparatus.—Careful consideration of the electrical construction and method of connecting X-ray apparatus is essential if its use in the presence of an inflammable anæsthetic is required. Sparking may occur in consequence of a defect in insulation, at switches, regulators, fan cooling motors, or plug and socket connectors, the degree of danger depending on the ventilation and proximity to the patient.

(c) Surgical Lamps.—These instruments must, in general, be of small dimensions, a fact which has led to a form of construction which, comparatively, is not robust and therefore tends to become unreliable with use. Sparking may be caused by accidental short circuiting of exposed terminals, or may occur in consequence of defects such as failure of insulation or intermittent contact and also at switches including those of the regulating type. Such sparking is particularly dangerous in connection with nose and throat operations where anæsthesia is maintained by ether-oxygen.

It is very desirable that those concerned with the design, construction, maintenance, and use of surgical lamps should realise the explosion risk and endeavour to minimise it. The first two points are for the manufacturer, but the best designs may be rendered ineffective unless the maintenance is both careful and competent.

The danger of ignition is less when small low voltage dry cells are used than where other forms of supply, such as accumulators, transformers, motor generators and large dry cells are employed. In general the voltage of the source of supply need not be appreciably more than that for which the lamp bulbs are rated, common values being 2·5, 2·7 and 3·5 volts.

Grave risk of electric shock and sparking is introduced by the arrangement of a surgical lamp, in conjunction with a regulating resistance, for direct connection to public supply mains.

These considerations apply also to lamps intended for attachment to the surgeon's head, and other forms of light projectors, the degree of risk depending on ventilation and the distance from the point of administration (or leakage) of the anæsthetic.

(d) Cauteries.—In addition to the possibility of electrical sparking the heat of the cautery may in itself be sufficient to cause combustion of ether vapour. Ether-oxygen vapour will, under conditions quite compatible with those under which anæsthetists use such a mixture, ignite by contact with hot metal 300°–350° C. below visible red heat.

(e) General Electrical Installation.—This term includes wiring, lighting and heating apparatus with the necessary switches and plug sockets. The risk of anæsthetic ignition such as at a heater element, or in consequence of switch spark, or a defect, is again dependent on the ventilation and situation. Attention to these latter factors should result in material diminution of the danger.

Static Electricity.

5. Under ordinary conditions there is sufficient humidity in the atmosphere of this country to prevent dangerous static electrification, but on days of exceptional dryness, or in theatres to which only warm dry air is delivered by a ventilating plant, the possibility of electrification and consequently of sparking is present. The latter condition is becoming more common and the number of theatres at risk is therefore increasing. Insulated apparatus such as rubber-tyred patients' trolleys or portable anæsthetic equipments can be electrified in various ways, as, for instance, by drawing a dry blanket or towel across them. Such charges usually leak away after a few seconds, but discharge by sparking to the person or adjacent objects is capable of igniting ether-oxygen mixtures.

This source of danger may be eliminated by artificial humidification of the air. Where this course is undesirable it is advisable to earth insulated apparatus, such as rubber-tyred trolleys or operating tables, and in general a light trailing chain between trolley metal-work and floor will usually be effective.

Static electrification is readily discharged by earth connections, even those of comparatively high resistance, and this point is of some importance if it is considered undesirable on account of shock risk to introduce "dead" earthed apparatus into a theatre where current supplied from public mains is used.

Ventilation.

6. The first point for attention when risk of anæsthetic explosion is under consideration is the adequacy, or otherwise, of the ventilation. It may be possible to devise local means of extracting air and vapour from the immediate vicinity of the patient which may considerably diminish general diffusion of anæsthetic vapour in the theatre, a point which, apart from reduction of explosion risk, may be of physical advantage to the surgical staff.

Accidents.

The following brief accounts of accidents of recent occurrence in this country illustrate some of the dangers referred to.

(1) In the course of an operation for dilatation of a cancerous growth of the œsophagus with insertion of radium, and while the surgeon was withdrawing a small surgical lamp, an explosion occurred in the patient's mouth and also at the anæsthetic apparatus which burst into flames. (The patient subsequently died.)

When the surgeon was about to begin the operation the oxygen stream through the ether bottle on the anæsthetic equipment was stopped by means of a tap, the latter being set to deliver chloroform and oxygen only. It was found, however, that a small quantity of ether may have been drawn from the open delivery side of the bottle to join the main current of oxygen and chloroform to the patient.

(2) Whilst a portable anæsthetic equipment carried on a rubber-tyred vehicle was being pushed alongside a similarly tyred patient's trolley, an explosion occurred resulting in injuries to the anæsthetist and patient. The air supply to the anæsthetic room in which the explosion occurred was treated and delivered by a ventilating plant. Its humidity was very low in consequence of this treatment. It was afterwards found that the insulated trolleys could be readily electrified by sharp movements of blankets, etc. The possibility of electrification of the insulated vehicles has since been obviated by the provision of trolley chains which have been found effective on a "Granolithic" or similar floor.

(3) A diathermy operation was in progress for carcinoma of the epiglottis. Anæsthesia was induced by chloroform (intratracheal), but during the course of the operation the anæsthetist thought it desirable to change to ether. An explosion occurred when the diathermy electrode was within the patient's mouth. Some of those present were injured by flying glass, and the patient subsequently died.

The Welfare of nearly

4,500,000 CHILDREN

has been affected to their life-long advantage by the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The Society has agencies in all parts of England, Wales and Ireland through which it exerts a vast influence in securing proper treatment for children. Last year, the N.S.P.C.C. protected 113,034 little ones—many mere babies—from all kinds of danger, moral and physical.

Much of the work is educational. Hundreds of thousands of pamphlets are distributed respecting the better upbringing of children, and the Society is continuously engaged in organising public meetings throughout the country. Your practical help is needed.

THE BRITISH HOME AND HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES

OF THE MIDDLE-CLASS

STREATHAM, LONDON, S.W.16

Founded 1861 — Incorporated by Royal Charter 1899

In the British Home and Hospital for Incurables at Streatham, a vital work of mercy is going on. It is the compassionate work of ministering to 110 middle-class men and women stricken with incurable diseases. Some are in pain, others enfeebled by years of suffering, all dependent on us for their home and existence. It is incumbent on us to make up their grievous loss of health, position and independence by careful treatment and sympathy. This gallant work must not be hindered, nor one of our 300 pensioners deprived of an allowance of 10/- per week, by lack of subscriptions.

More than £23,000 is spent annually on this compassionate and ever expanding work. Subscriptions are needed to help us increase our accommodation, and thereby to elect into the comforts of our home more of these incurable sufferers.

Legacies, subscriptions and donations gratefully received by the Secretary:

THE CRUSADE AGAINST CANCER

At the Royal Cancer Hospital (Free) Doctors and Scientists give their time exclusively to the study of cancer. Patients are received from all parts of the world, and they benefit from the most up-to-date methods of treatment and the most modern appliances.

The work of the Research Institute of the Hospital (a school of the University of London) is well known and widely appreciated. Professor E. L. Kennaway, the Director of The Research Institute, and Professor J. W. Cook, Research Chemist, were awarded this year a prize for their outstanding achievement in cancer research by the Union Internationale Contre le Cancer, which comprises the representatives of 45 Nations.

All this costs money, and £150,000 is urgently needed to modernise the wards, some of which date back to 1859, to extend the Research Institute and to enlarge the Nurses' Home.

This Charity was established in 1872 to give permanent relief to such persons as are hopelessly disqualified for the duties of life by disease, accident, or deformity.

Candidates are elected half-yearly, in May and November, by the votes of the Life Governors and Subscribers.

There are two Homes:

Mauldeth Home, Heaton Mersey, near Manchester
(25 men and 55 women)

and

Robinson-Kay Home, Walmersley House, Bury, Lancashire
(51 women)

The Charity largely depends on generous LEGACIES, Subscriptions and Donations, and more are earnestly solicited.

Annual Subscribers: 10*s.* 6*d.*, One Vote; £1 1*s.* 0*d.*, Two Votes; and so on in proportion.

Donors of £5 5*s.* 0*d. become Life Governors, and receive One Vote at each Election.*

. . THE COST OF CIVILIZATION . .

Since 1930, when a unique combined unit of Isolation Hospital and Research Laboratories was built, Queen Charlotte's Hospital has been at war with the microbe causing puerperal fever. This organism is also responsible for scarlet fever, abscess of the ear and death from wounds both in war and on the roads. It is a costly warfare. Over £80,000 has been spent and success is now within sight.

But lack of funds has meant that money for new maternity wards has been used for this vital research. Though over 2,900 women are admitted to the wards, and 1,200 treated at their homes each year, we are still compelled to turn away one woman in four, so that we must build now.

£60,000 is needed this year for this essential extension, now begun.

MENTAL DISORDERS

NORWICH. Established 1713

THIS is an Endowed Institution, managed by a Board of Governors, having no pecuniary interest in its prosperity. The original buildings have been much enlarged and improved during recent years, and are well furnished throughout, and everything possible done to promote the cure, comfort and general well-being of the patients. The grounds are ample and tastefully laid out, and a variety of amusements provided. There is a good library for the use of the patients, together with a full supply of the leading Magazines and Newspapers. Divine Service is held in the Hospital each Sunday. Voluntary, Temporary and Certified Patients are admitted as vacancies occur. For further particulars apply to the Medical Superintendent.

THE LAWN, LINCOLN

THIS registered hospital for mental and nervous diseases was one of the first hospitals in England to introduce more humane methods into the treatment of mental illness, and affords special facilities for intensive psychotherapy to co-operative patients requiring such treatment. Private and voluntary patients of both sexes are received for treatment, including adults suffering from after effects of encephalitis lethargica. Fees from £4 4s. weekly, reductions being made in special cases, preference in granting such reductions being given to residents of Lincolnshire. The Hospital combines the advantages of town and country, being situated in large grounds on the southern side of the hill-top near the cathedral, obtaining a maximum of fresh air and sunshine, while within easy access of the centre of the town.

For full particulars apply to the Resident Medical Superintendent, Dr. Myra Mackenzie. Telephone: Lincoln 165.

ROTUNDA HOSPITAL, DUBLIN

The Hospital contains 135 beds. Over 2,000 maternity cases and nearly 1,000 gynæcological patients are treated during the year. Besides the Hospital there is an extern Maternity Department with over 2,000 cases. The routine for students consists of attendance at the Morning Lectures on Midwifery and Gynæcology, examination of patients in the Gynæcological Departments, attendance at operations and all abnormal labour in the Hospital Wards, and conduction of labour cases in the intern and extern departments; a new large Ante-natal Clinic and Dispensary has just been added which gives increased facilities to Students, the Infants' Department is available also. The Pathological Laboratory has been considerably enlarged, and offers convenient facilities for practical work to Post Graduates and Students. There is a pregnancy-diagnosis station where the Aschheim-zondek test is carried out. The Bio-chemist is prepared to help any Post Graduate desiring to do research work on the material in the Hospital. There is a fully equipped X-ray installation under the care of a competent radiologist.

Qualified students are allowed to assist at the major and perform some minor gynæcological operations.

The Hospital Courses are always going on during the year, and students can join at any time. The Class is limited, therefore it is advisable to register in advance. Board and residence can be obtained in the Hospital at £2 2s. per week.

Extra classes in gynæcological diagnosis and operative midwifery are conducted by the Assistants to the Master.

One grass and two hard tennis courts and one standard squash racket court are available for students living in the Residents' Mess.

The L.M. Certificate is given to qualified practitioners on examination after six months' attendance at the Hospital.

Fees: one month, £6 6s.; months other than the first, £4 4s.; Three months, £12 12s. L.M. Course, £21.

LONDON BRIDGE, S.E.1

A reproduction of the original Iron Chest used by Thomas Guy which stands in the Boardroom of the Hospital.

THOMAS GUY founded the great hospital which bears his name over 200 years ago, and commenced a remarkable tradition of efficient philanthropy. Fortunately, Guy was not only a generous benefactor but a far-sighted man, and the wonderful success of his Hospital, which has now grown into a great City of Healing, is largely due to the fact that it has always been conducted under the terms drawn up in his will. Thomas Guy and the great names of Medicine and Surgery associated with the Hospital fill an illustrious page in medical history of this country.

BETHLEM ROYAL HOSPITAL

FOR NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISORDERS

Monks Orchard, Monks Orchard Road, Eden Park, Beckenham, Kent.

Reg. Tel. Address: BETHLEM, BECKENHAM
Telephone: SPRINGPARK 1180–1181
Station: EDEN PARK (Southern Railway)

President: VISCOUNT WAKEFIELD OF HYTHE, G.C.V.O.
Treasurer: Sir LIONEL FAUDEL-PHILLIPS, Bart.
Physician-Superintendent: J. G. PORTER-PHILLIPS, M.D., F.R.C.P.

This Registered Hospital is now situated at Monks Orchard, in some 250 acres of park, pleasure and farm grounds. Applications can be considered on behalf of patients of the educated classes in a presumably curable condition.

With a view to early treatment, voluntary or uncertified patients are admitted.

Patients who can contribute 5 guineas weekly towards the cost of treatment and maintenance may be received as vacancies arise. The Committee will also consider applications for admission at lower rates and in certain cases will be prepared to admit patients free of charge.

Every facility for specialised investigation and treatment is provided in the Lord Wakefield Science and Treatment Unit. In this Unit is found the X-Ray and Dental Departments, and the Bio-Chemical, Pathological and Psychological Laboratories.

Furthermore, provision is made for Electro-Therapy and Hydro-Therapy to be carried out in all their forms, and Occupational Therapy under competent instruction is encouraged.

In addition to the Resident Medical Staff, Consultants in special branches of Medicine and Surgery are available whenever required.

The comfort of sensitive patients is greatly enhanced by the fact that the majority are given single bedrooms.

For forms and further particulars apply to the Physician-Superintendent at the Hospital.

THE COPPICE, Nottingham,

HOSPITAL FOR MENTAL DISEASES.

President—The Rt. Hon. LORD BELPER.

This Institution, for the reception of Private Patients of both sexes of the Upper and Middle Classes only, at moderate rates of payment, is beautifully situated in its own grounds about two miles from Nottingham, and from its singularly healthy and pleasant position, and the comfort of its internal arrangements, affords every facility for the relief and cure of those mentally afflicted. Occupational Therapy. Divine Service is held in the Institution every Sunday by the Chaplain, who also visits the Patients. Carriage exercise is provided. There is a branch Seaside Villa at Lowestoft.

For Terms, etc., apply to Dr. HUNTER, Medical Superintendent.

VOLUNTARY PATIENTS.—Patients are received without certificates who are in a condition to apply voluntarily for admission. This method is particularly applicable to persons in the commencing stages of mental or nervous disorder, since early treatment may ward off a serious attack, and avoid the necessity for certification.

"Temporary" patients are also received.

HEIGHAM HALL, NORWICH

A PRIVATE MENTAL HOME for Ladies and Gentlemen suffering from Nervous or Mental Illness. The Mansion, surrounded by extensive private grounds, is furnished as a private residence, and nothing suggests confinement. Voluntary Patients, Temporary Patients, and Patients under Certificates are admitted for treatment. Fees: from 4 guineas a week upwards, according to requirements. Apply to Medical Superintendent. Telephone: 80 Norwich. Telegrams: Small, 80 Norwich.

British & Foreign Bible Society

Since its foundation in 1804 it has issued more than 476,050,000 copies of the Scriptures.

Its circulation last year was 11,686,131 volumes.

Last year the Expenditure exceeded the Income by £21,580, but the work continues to grow. The demand for the Scriptures in hundreds of languages increases, and your help is asked for in this most sacred task of putting God's Word into the hands of the people of this earth.

IMPERIAL CANCER RESEARCH FUND

Patron—His Most Gracious Majesty the King.
President—The Rt. Hon. Viscount Halifax, K.G., P.C.

FOUNDED in 1902, under the direction of the Royal College of Physicians of London and the Royal College of Surgeons of England as a centre for research and information on Cancer, the Imperial Cancer Research Fund is working unceasingly on the systematic investigation of the disease in man and animals. The work of this Fund and of other great centres of research has increased our knowledge of the origin and nature of Cancer and has so altered our outlook that the disease is now curable in increasing numbers. But our present accommodation is too limited and we are now building new modern laboratories to extend the scope of our investigations. The income from investments and the Endowment Fund is insufficient to cover the total annual expenditure, and help is urgently needed to meet the heavy additional cost of expansion.

Donations and Subscriptions may be sent to the Honorary Treasurer, 8-11 Queen Square, London, W.C.1, or may be paid to the Westminster Bank, Ltd., Marylebone Branch, 1 Stratford Place, London, W., A/c Imperial Cancer Research Fund.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I hereby bequeath the sum of £ to the Treasurer of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund under the direction of the Royal College of Physicians of London and the Royal College of Surgeons of England, 8–11, Queen Square, Bloomsbury, London, W.C. 1, for the purpose of Scientific Research, and I direct that his receipt shall be a good discharge for such legacy.

Honorary Consulting Surgeon:
W. SAMPSON HANDLEY, M.D., M.S., F.R.C.S., L.R.C.P.
Treasurer:
REGINALD ABEL SMITH.

THIS Hostel was founded in 1891. Its object is to provide a Home, where men and women in the last stages of illness, who, having seen better days, shrink from claiming the shelter of the County Hospital or Workhouse Infirmary and can appreciate very fully the refinement and comfort which we are able to give them, may end their days in peace carefully and tenderly nursed and surrounded by everything that can cheer them and alleviate their sufferings.

The Home is almost entirely dependent upon charity; it is absolutely free to all without distinction of creed or country.

Application for admission to be made to the Sister Superior, 29 North Side, Clapham Common, S.W. 4.

Cheques to be crossed "Messrs. HOARE, 37 Fleet Street, E.C. 4," and made payable to "The Hostel of GOD."

SOUTH LONDON INSTITUTE FOR THE BLIND

83 BOROUGH ROAD, LONDON, S.E.1

(Registered under the Blind Persons Act, 1920)

This institute was founded in Southwark in 1870, and was, until his death, under the patronage of that well-known philanthropist, the 7th Earl of Shaftesbury.

The object of the Charity is, by means of voluntary helpers, to organise work among the poor blind in the following directions:—(1) a Bureau for those seeking employment; (2) Religious services and educational classes (3) a Hostel for unmarried blind men; (4) Recreation.

This Society relies upon voluntary contributions. Nearly all the workers are honorary.

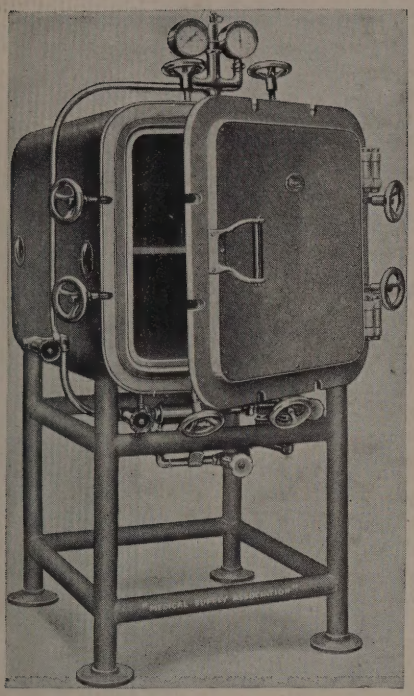
HOSPITAL EQUIPMENT

The Largest Showrooms in the Empire where can be seen the largest selection of equipment of all kinds



This typical M.S.A. Sterilizer was supplied to the Sully Hospital, Cardiff.

STERILIZING EQUIPMENT

This is only one model of the vast range of sterilizers which we actually manufacture in our London Works, under the direction of expert sterilizing engineers. Our Engineering Service can be of timely assistance when planning the layout of Equipment to meet specific requirements. By referring your sterilizing problem to us you will get, free of charge, first-class technical advice. Equipment for some of the largest Hospitals and to the order of the best-known Hospital Architects has been supplied by the M. S. A.

THE FOLLOWING ARE A FEW OF THE HOSPITALS TO WHICH WE HAVE SUPPLIED THE PLAISTOW COMBINED ORTHOPAEDIC AND GENERAL OPERATION TABLE

Invalid and Crippled Children's Hospital, Plaistow
Manfield Orthopaedic Hospital, Northampton
Chesterfield Nursing Home, Clifton, Bristol
Mater Hospital, Dublin
Withington Hospital, Manchester
Royal Northern Infirmary, Inverness
Liverpool Royal Infirmary
Dame Hannah Rogers Orthopaedic Hospital School, Ivyridge, Devon
East Suffolk and Ipswich Hospital, Ipswich
Durham County Hospital, Durham
Queen Victoria Memorial College Hospital, Herne Bay

COMBINED OPERATION AND ORTHOPAEDIC TABLE

With the increasing importance of Orthopaedics in the realm of Surgery, the need has arisen amongst those Hospitals who have not the available facilities for a separate Plaster Room to have at their disposal an apparatus that will perform efficiently both as a general Operation Table and as an Orthopaedic Table. This new Emesay product serves this double purpose. It is compact and clean in design, and sturdy in workmanship, whilst all controls are situated beneath the table at the head end, and easy of access by the anaesthetist.
